The Crow Wing County Historical Society is committed to preserving the history and telling the story of Crow Wing County.

The Carbine House restoration project at the county fairgrounds is nearly completed. The numbered logs in the above photo designate the logs that were not replaced. A ribbon cutting ceremony is planned for Thursday, June 19th at noon.

The Crow Wing County Fair is a recipient of a County Fair Arts Access and Cultural Heritage grant from the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. The Carbine House Restoration project is funded, in part, by the Legacy Amendment’s Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund as appropriated by the Minnesota State Legislature.

The Society is very grateful to the Minnesota Department of Agriculture for their support.

President’s Report

Summer is here. The Society has had one of its best years. First of all, our annual meeting, dinner, and silent auction was one of our most successful ones. Many thanks to our staff and volunteers in making it all happen. Elaine Axtell and Shirley Jensen did a wonderful job decorating the Eagles Club as usual. Now we’re coming up to interesting month with History Week. Our day will be one of celebration on Thursday, June 19th in our buildings at the fairgrounds. I hope people will take the time to come out and enjoy some of the many interesting events that will be going on. Our Executive Director, Pam Nelson is working hard with the History Week committee to make the whole week interesting and successful. I would also like to report that the Crow Wing County Historical Foundation met and voted to assist the Museum with the upgrade of 3 new computers. If anyone would like more information on the Foundation contact the Museum.

Board President
Greetings
From Pamela Nelson,
Director/Administrator

We have so many things to share with you that we decided to publish the Summer Newsletter sooner than usual.

We have a new person on staff that replaced Administrative Assistant Darla Sathre. Her name is Sue Duda. She has lived in Brainerd most of her life. Sue and her husband have 2 grown children and one grandson. Welcome Sue! Darla and her husband’s dream to move back to their hometown of Bemidji came true earlier than expected, due to unforeseen circumstances. We are happy for her but will greatly miss her!

Brainerd is planning a centennial birthday celebration commemorating the city hall and old fire station the week of June 16-22. There will be something for everyone. Each day will be filled with historic and fun events.

NEW EXHIBIT
A new exhibit called “History on Loan” will be on display at the Museum for Brainerd History Week. Area historians have temporarily loaned artifacts for this exhibit. Come check it out. The Exhibit features old bottles, spears, and several advertising items that will take you back to the “olden days”.

BOOK SIGNING AND PRESENTATION
Author Joel Arnold will do a presentation about his historical novel Ox Cart Angel on July 17th at 1 pm in the meeting room at the Museum. His talk will be about an hour long. His novel recently won a Midwest Book Award and has been featured in the Rochester Post-Bulletin and Plains Magazine. It takes place in 1862 along the ox-cart/Red River trail of Minnesota and North Dakota. A little about Ox Cart Angel:
“Claire Dumont and her father set out on a journey from the Dakota Territory, hoping to catch up to the large caravan of Métis fur traders that left the day before. Their destination? The bustling city of St. Paul, where Papa wishes to open a photography studio. But with only Bone Bag, their one-horned ox, to pull their squeaky cart, they soon realize they just might have to make their treacherous journey alone. Braving bad weather, packs of wolves, dangerous river crossings, starvation and exhaustion, Claire and her father try their best to survive the deeply rutted ox cart trails.”

Hope to see you there!

Watch and listen to local media for more information about this exciting event.
History Week, coming up in June, makes me think of the records that reflect earlier days in Brainerd. It was definitely a different time. It wasn’t a different place, but things were quite different and some early records reflect that.

A rather interesting record is the 1914 register of tramps that were in jail. I’m not sure if they all sought shelter in the jail, or whether some were actually picked up and arrested. The jail seemed to be a place that provided accommodations for the homeless and indigent especially during the cold months of the year.

Who were the individuals that were labeled tramps in this 1914 registration book? Most were young men in their 20s and 30s. As a rule, they were single and had no trade. They listed their occupation as laborer. They were looking for work. Many were unsure about where they were going. There were a few older persons who said they were woodsmen, cooks, electricians, machinists or farmers. Here are two examples of men who stayed in the Brainerd jail. Charles Rockford checked in at 12:30 on March 8th. He was 29, single, born in Mass. with parents also born in that state. He came from Superior, Wisconsin. He had no money or property. He was a pipe fitter. He didn’t stay at the jail for any length of time since he was leaving town, but he didn’t know where he was going. Oscar Johnson was single, age 27, born in Sweden. He came from Fargo, had no money or property. He was a laborer looking for work.

Another interesting record book is the Motor Vehicle Registration Book, 1917-1921. The 1920s saw a huge growth in transportation. Driving became a major leisure activity in the 1920s. During the 1920s there were hundreds of small producers making hand-crafted cars. However, as mass production made cars cheaper, the small companies were taken over, or put out of business.

Brainerd residents registered an astonishingly large number of different makes of cars. Certainly there were the Fords and the Chevrolets. There also were the Nashes, Packards, and Studebakers which some of our older citizens remember. But how many of you remember the Oakland, the Overland, Sandow, Elin, Reo, Saxon, Allen, Velie, Hupmobile, Moon and Dort. There were many more.

Another interesting set of records are the tax cards for 1928 and 1944. These cards include much information about the home: type of heat, plumbing, kind of floors, type of roof and if the house was stuccoed or had siding. It also listed additions, if there was a basement, an attic or garage and the condition of the house.

I was able to locate the tax card for the Carbine House, which we have at the fairgrounds. The house was built in 1868, in good condition in 1928; it was log frame, and a homestead. It had a shingle roof, a cellar, no attic, stoves for heat, and had plumbing. Since it was listed as having 5 bedrooms, a bath, and a glassed-in porch, we can assume that the house was added to before 1928. When the house was moved to the fairgrounds, the additions were not included. Only the original structure is there for you to see.

Some of our more unusual records give you a window into the past and can certainly provide interesting details.

1910 Touring with left hand steering

According to the Motor Registration book, V. W. Mackay registered a Jackson. Mr. McKay was 5 ft. 3 ½ Inches tall, weighing 115 lbs. He had dark hair and was age 34. C.W. Koering of Brainerd, age 49, registered a Regal. Mr. Koering was 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighing 160 lbs and had dark hair. It is rather interesting that a description of each person was required. Since a driver’s license was not yet required, the description helped in identifying the auto owner. A driver’s license wasn’t required in Minnesota until 1933 with driver’s testing required in 1948.

WHAT USED TO BE...

By Brian Marsh

We can all think of things that were used in the past but, for the most part, have vanished. These were items that were common in everyday life and that we, perhaps, took for granted would always be there, such as ice boxes, 8-track players, clip-on roller skates, etc. But, they have all but disappeared from the landscape.

The same has happened to several towns and villages in Crow Wing County. As a rule, municipalities tend to spring up as the result of some type of commerce. However, they can also vanish as the result of a lack of commerce.

One such town was Woodrow, located in Oak Lawn township.

Located about 11 miles northeast of Brainerd, it came into existence due to the continuing discovery of iron ore deposits in the county. In 1914, an underground mine known as the Wilcox was opened, which resulted in an influx of laborers who came to work in the mine. As the population increased, so did the need for the basic necessities of life – shelter, goods, and services. It didn’t take long for a community to develop.

However, prior to this, it was envisioned that a town site would be needed. Thus, on March 6, 1914, this was platted by Paul and Marguerite Hale, and the little town was incorporated on June 16, 1914, being named Woodrow in honor of President Woodrow Wilson. It had two general stores, a restaurant, and boarding houses among its businesses. A post office was established on June 3, 1915. Like many communities, it had its own town baseball team, which played games against teams from other towns in the area, such as Brainerd.

Unfortunately, the heyday for this little town was to be short-lived. The Wilcox mine was sold and renamed the Omaha. In 1919, it went bankrupt and was shut down. During that brief 5 year period, the mine produced 279,316 tons of iron ore. The demise of the mine also created the demise of the town. With no available work, residents fled and businesses had to close shop. Finally, the town became unincorporated on July 31, 1931.

Little Woodrow became yet another casualty to the law of supply and demand.
