"Is the 16th century—wa—wa—I can't."

Hon. G. G. Hartley has been elected president of the Red Red Improvement Society.—Duluth Herald.

The St. Cloud Tribune talks like a child when it tries to enlighten the world on the recent Brainerd election.

The Republican state convention will be held May 16th. Crow Wing county is entitled to three delegates.

With Dewey's oratorical powers and McKenzie's ideas the two ought to make a strong team on a lecturing tour.

The Brainerd Tribune has been designated as the city paper for the ensuing year. How does the News figure that out?

Presidential boom climbers have been escorted from Minneapolis in Gen. Washburn's interest, and from Indianapolis in Harrison's interest, to Brainerd.

The News editor struck a new word Friday and used it in every sentence he wrote that day. In fact he "implanted" the Journal four times in as many lines.

We understand that Bro. Dewey immortalized himself by his eloquent speech at the rink Saturday evening, and that he has already begun to receive pressing invitations from all parts of the globe to deliver Fourth of July orations.

General Manager Ainslie returned to-day from a trip over the Northern Pacific. He states that the Montana part of Montana are plowing and that the greater part of the seed has been planted. The stock on the Montana ranges are fat and have wintered well. The Yellowstone river is all clear of ice except in a few places and no danger is anticipated from these. The rumored danger from the Yellowstone is all imaginary. The Missouri has risen about eight feet, but is now falling fast there being a fall of 14 inches last night. The ice is solid with no signs of breaking up.—St. Paul News.

The Dispatch now has a correspondent from nearly every precinct in the county and in due time we propose to have every settlement and hamlet throughout Crow Wing county represented in the columns of our paper. If your locality is not represented attend to the matter yourself or get some of your neighbors to choose one of the happenings in your neighborhood and forward them to us. Births, deaths, weddings, accidents, crop reports, society happenings, etc., will all be acceptable.

Business men who use the rubber stamp for letter heads and cards make a great mistake. The letter of a business man is a representative to many people in the same line and all who are likely to form their judgment of him by it to a large extent and the impression given is about the same as the impression that would be given if he sent out a dirty faced, slouchily dressed, sleepy John to deliver the same. A man who uses poverty stricken stationery stands in a bad light before every one he addresses himself to. For the sake of economizing a few cents per thousand he cuts off in the opinion of many people of importance to him. Any printing office can furnish neatly printed stationery that costs little if any more than the cheap stuff in use by those referred to.—Duluth Herald.

Is theory free trade is undoubtedly right. In practice, however, in this country, it is wrong. The moment it operates directly against the wage-earner, who is the very life of our industries. Whatever effects him financially effects the whole country, and whatever is best for him is best for the whole country. As a result of our present protective tariff laws, the laboring man may not "have sumptuously every day," yet he has more good food to eat, better clothing to wear, owns more happy little homes, gives his children more and better schooling, spends more money for luxuries for himself, wife and children, contributes more to charity and the church, has more money in his pocket, and, what is richer still, is the happy possessor of more of the natural, God-given rights of man, than is the laboring man of any other country on the face of this beautiful sun-kissed earth. The toiler of America is king—in other countries he is a slave. Do away with protective tariff and you force the wage-earner of our country into direct competition—also his employer—with the cheap labor of Europe. Why wish to change it?

Who Puts Up The Stuff?

In the first place, Hon. C. F. Kindred does not own a dollar in the Daily News, and never did.—News.

Who puts up the money when it gets down so that the boys all sweat they will quit unless they get their pay? Who pays McKenzie's salary? Who goes to the paper houses of Minneapolis and goes good for stock for the concern? Who dictates to the News its policy? To all these questions there is but one answer—C. F. Kindred. If Mr. Kindred had not stood by the institution it would not have lived a month, and every man withdrew his bank account from the support of it. If C. F. Kindred doesn't own the News and its editor, body and breeches, he comes pretty near it.

A Blizzard Struck It.

The Brainerd Daily News appears to have been snowed under at the municipal elections.—St. Cloud Tribune.

Just Possible!

W. W. Hartley—C. F. Kindred is not a candidate for congress in the Fifth, but in case of a close contest in the convention it is just possible that he might come to the front as a dark horse.—Evening Star.

Kindred's Scheme.

The McGill workers got together and began figuring on a plan. After a brief consultation Mr. Kindred, who is the brains of the party, who is the life blood of the lower brains, the bones, and all the rest from the St. Cloud hooker, is enjoying a gubernatorial boom in consequence. Kindred is known to be the principal owner of the Brainerd News. It will be remembered that a couple of weeks ago the News came out with a double-leaded, columnlong boom for Scheffer as a candidate for governor. And here is the scheme in a nutshell. Scheffer has allowed McGill to be set up as a "think" for Kindred in expectation of receiving political support from the Governor's henchmen. He is to sneak in there in the hopes of preventing any other candidate pitted against McGill from capturing the fifth district delegation and those of other sections disaffected with McGill. When the proper time arrives Scheffer's strength is to be thrown to McGill.—Evening Journal.

We will wager dollars to cents that if C. F. Kindred pledges the Crow Wing county delegation to any candidate for governor that he (Kindred) will get left. The republicans of this county are working independent of any "boss" this year and not to fill the pledges of any would-be regulator. When the time comes they will be at liberty to vote as they see fit regardless of the consequences—or the feelings of any pledge-maker. While there is a very warm feeling in Crow Wing county for Mr. McGill and in all probability he will receive their support, it might be a good thing for him to understand how matters are situated in this neck o'woods.

Firm as a Rock.

The Brainerd Dispatch was the only Brainerd paper to come out for Cleveland this year, and we congratulate our friends. Stay there.—Little Falls Transcript.

The Mayor's Message.

To the Honorable the President and Aldermen of the City Council of the City of Brainerd:

Following the well known custom when the executive of a municipality assumes his office and addresses the legislative branch of the city, and through them the electors at large, regarding certain needs of a city's welfare, and also regarding the execution and fulfillment of a certain will expressed by the people through the ballot, I therefore invite your careful consideration and attention.

Our city has benefitted the past year by a general revival of business prosperity and now prevails throughout the nation. Brainerd is situated in a favorable locality in our great and growing northern state with a rural city to dispute its sway; surrounded by a country with rich and fertile soil peculiarly adapted to farming and grazing purposes; surrounded by an area with an inexhaustible supply of pine, tamarack, oak, ponnar and other timber, all this timber being at our very door in our city's limits and ready for the future lumber industry. To the north of us and bordering on our great system of northern lakes extends a belt rich in mineral ore, whose hidden mines of iron, silver and copper will in the not distant future supply the world. This valuable territory of pine and mineral land is to be reached only by a single railroad, while the topography of this country is peculiarly adapted for the construction of a first road at small expense, and the Mississippi broadening at times into inland seas, affords easy steamboat navigation. Railroad and navigation centers in this favored locality must and will be established at an early date. Brainerd is the most convenient place from which said system can be constructed and operated, and it behooves this city to acquire sufficient land for terminal and yard facilities for their accommodation while real estate is still to be had at reasonable figures. And while we encourage new railroads we should not forget the old Northern Pacific who has made our beautiful city what it is; unwise legislation to their interests would rebound to our city's detriment.

We all rejoice in the completion of our great Brainerd dam, and we all look with exquisite expectancy for the many manufacturing industries its wonderful water power and boom facilities surely must bring forth. I recommend to the council to institute favorable action with the board of county commissioners to abate for a certain period all taxes for new manufactories.

Every indication points to a busy building season, and as a city's prosperity and foundation is to a great extent evidenced by the character of its buildings, the council ought to establish a so-called fire limit, and also create the office of City Building Inspector, one of whose duties should be to issue all building permits in accordance with plans and specifications necessary for fire-proof buildings in the business portion and connect them with the sewer on Laurel street.

Believing that from internal improvements in a city, the poor as well as the rich ought to reap a benefit, I would suggest that, where such is let by the city to a contractor, or where the city performs its own work, I will approve no contract or agreement unless it is first agreed that eight hours shall constitute a day's labor and that one dollar and a half shall be paid for common labor and that such a value be graded in proportion.

The Sunday law regarding the sale of intoxicating liquors, wines and beverages and all kindred evils in connection will be suppressed and all gambling devices or appliances seized and destroyed as prescribed by law. Persons found gambling, or persons known to be professional gamblers will be arrested and placed before the municipal court. The so-called social evil will be held under strict police and sanitary regulations. All parties found living in houses of ill-fame will be arrested at once, and not only once as often as the exigencies demand, and placed before the court for trial. Fines will not be remitted in these cases.

In concluding, I take this opportunity to thank the good people of Brainerd for their expression of confidence in electing me their executive, and assure them that the trust reposed in me and the duties devolving on me as mayor will be performed to the best of my abilities. In my official acts as well as in the capacity of a private citizen, I will always promote the best interests of Brainerd, notwithstanding the wails and lamentations arising from the other side. Remember that those are but tricks of defeated politicians.

Warren Hemstead,
Mayor.

Brainerd, March 19, 1888.

Mississippi Reservoirs.

Washington, March 20.—Upon suggestion of Col. Brooks, Senator Nelson introduced and then withdrew a resolution of inquiry, a resolution calling upon the secretary of the interior for information concerning the condition of reservoirs on the upper Mississippi.

Baby Bunting Again.

One of the greatest literary hits of the season is the story of "Baby Bunting; or, the Alphabet of Love," by Laura Jean Libbey, which is at present being published in the columns of The New York Family Story Paper. The paper containing the opening chapters of this wonderful popular romance appeared on the news stands this morning. The tremendous rush for that number by the young ladies of the town shows clearly that the publishers have struck a bonanza. The Family Story Paper is for sale by all newsdealers, or will be sent to any address four months, postage free, for $1.00. Norman L. Munro, Publisher, 24 and 26 Vandewater Street, New York.

Kerosene For Washing.

A lady who has used "kerosene for washing purposes for some time, is very strongly and gives this as her method for the best results: Use a common short bar of soap into an ordinary wash boiler two-thirds full of water, let it boil, add two and a half tablespoonfuls of kerosene, then put in the white clothes first and let them boil vigorously twenty minutes, stirring occasionally. Put them in a tub and pour on water enough to wash with, rinse and hang out. The suds left in the boiler will do for the colored clothes if you are not very particular. Do not soak over night, or fear to put the finest garments into the suds thus prepared, as the latter has been boiled, and do not mix in any other compounds or fluids. The commonest and strongest soaps are best, as no soaps used in this way will make the hands rough. You will not have to do much rubbing. There will not be the least smell of the oil in the clothing when dry, and the white goods will rival the snow in whiteness.—Ex.

BAKING POWDERS,

Official Tests by the Ohio State Food Commission, Analysis of the Chief Brands in the Market—Their Strength and Value Ascertained.

The Ohio State Dairy and Food Commission, under the direction of the legislature of that state, has made public the result of its recent official examination of the baking powders of the market. As many of the brands analyzed are in use throughout the country, the report of the commission will be found of general interest.

The startling fact, so brought out by the report that of the thirty different brands of baking powder analyzed, twenty are made from alum, a substance declared by the highest medical authorities to be injurious to health when used in food.

The commission classify the baking powders into three general divisions, according to their values:

1st. Cream of Tartar Baking Powders.

2d. Phosphate Baking Powders.

3d. Alum Baking Powder.

The commission explains that the best baking powder is that which, the ingredients being healthful gives off the largest amount of leavening gas and leaves the smallest amount of residuum in the bread. A small amount of carbonate of ammonia, which is considered healthful, is used in some of the cream of tartar powders to give them a higher strength. The commission says that alum is undoubtedly unhealthful. The report ranks the powders and shows the amount in each of inert resultants, which in using it would appear as residuum in the bread as follows:

	Name.	Per Cent. Inert, Or Residuum.
	CREAM OF TARTAR POWDERS.
1.	Royal	7.20
2.	Dr. Price's	11.66
3.	Cleveland's	11.93
4.	Cream Tartar	11.13
5.	Snow Drift	17.34
6.	Upon Tyson	9.83
7.	Dr. Land's	32.92
8.	Pioneer	37.63
	PHOSPHATIC BAKING POWDERS.
9.	Horsford's	36.49
10.	Wheeler	38.33
	ALUM BAKING POWDERS.
11.	Eclipse	34.35
12.	Rock	34.94
13.	Veteran	42.76
14.	Cook's Favorite	44.34
15.	Sun Flower	45.03
16.	Kenton	45.07
17.	Pompeo	45.18
18.	Ohio Belle	46.05
19.	Hockey	46.85
20.	Pecker	46.98
21.	Silver Star	51.03
22.	Crown	56.60
23.	Crown (special)	56.60
24.	Our Boom	57.74
25.	Our Specialty	58.07
26.	Cadence	58.24
27.	Gem	58.32
28.	Dandelion	58.35
29.	Zipp's Grape Crystal	61.02
30.	Forest City	64.35

The large amount of inert matter or residuum in both the phosphate and alum powders will be noted. This in the most phosphate powders is largely of lime; in the alum powders it is chiefly alum. It will be gratifying to the public to observe that the powder in most general use, the Royal, is also the purest. In comparing the first two powders on the list, namely—the Royal and Dr. Price's—the inert matter in Price's is seen to be about five in seven more than in the former, a difference of 73 5-7 per cent., the Royal being under Price's by a corresponding figure.

The carbonic or leaving gas produced by the powders indicates their strength; and their true value may be ascertained by considering the amount of this gas in connection with their inert matter or residuum as shown above. The higher the percentage of gas and the lower the percentage of residuum the better the baking powder. These percentages, as found in some of the most familiar powders, are given as follows:

Name.	Per Cent. of Leavening Gas.	Per. Cent. of Residuum.
Royal	11.90	7.20
Sterling	11	12.63
Price's	11.30	12.66
Leland's	10	32.27
Cook's Favorite	9.85	44.34
Royal (old)	7.85	54.54
Silver Star, Alum	8.50	51.03
Kenton, Alum	8.30	45.07
Patagonia, Alum	6	49.08
Hecker, Alum	5.80	52.07
Cook's Favorite, Alum	5.80	56.60
Our Specialty, Alum	5.60	58.07

With the foregoing explanation the study of these figures will readily give consumers a knowledge of the comparative value of the different powders. To illustrate with the percentage given the two powders before compared, the Royal containing 12.13 parts of leavening gas to 10.5 in Price's its excess of strength is 1-3 in 10.5 per cent. Royal is therefore 12.4 per cent. stronger, as well as 71 per cent. purer the Price's, etc. The figures through and parity of all the powders can be computed in like manner.

"Nasal Voices, Catarrh and False Teeth."

A prominent English woman says the American women all have high, shrill, nasal voices, and bad teeth.

Americans don't like the constant twitting they get about this nasal twang, and yet it is a fact caused by our dry stimulating atmosphere, and the universal presence of catarrhal troubles.

But why should so many of our women have false teeth?

That is more of a poser to the English. It is quite impossible to accurately tell except on the theory of deranged stomach action caused by ingredients in eating and by want of regular exercise.

Both conditions are unnatural.

Catarrhal troubles everywhere are prevail and soil in couch and consumption, which are produced by the malnutrition induced by deranged stomach action. The physicians in a recent one, one unknown to our ancestors who prevented the catarrh, cold, cough and consumption by a thorough and regular use of what is now known as Warner's Log Cabin Cough and Consumption Remedy and Log Cabin Sarsaparilla, two old fashioned standard remedies handed down from our ancestors, and now exciting the wonder of the world for strongest guarantees of purity and efficacy by the world-famed makers of Warner's Safe Cure, these two remedies plentifully used as spring and summer seasons advance give a positive assurance of freedom, both from these threatening troubles and if neglected, inevitable consequences, pneumonia, lung troubles and consumption. Colonel Eli Fisher, of Salem, Henry Co., Iowa, served four years in the late war and contracted a disease of the stomach, which left him in a bad way. He had frequent hemorrhages. After using Warner's Log Cabin Remedy for consumption remedy, he says, under date of Jan. 19th, 1888: "I do not bleed at the lungs any more, my cough does not bother me, and I do not have that soreness in my stomach." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it, it takes in time. The solid-nowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore right ones to a healthy state when all other means have failed. Consumption can gradually testify to this. All druggists.

In Minnesota a statute provides that, under the responsibility of Indian outbreaks, the sheriff of a county may call out the military in aid of the county to resist such incursion. In the Sioux outbreak of 1862 a large number of calls of this character were made and responded to.

Medical Record. A correspondent asks whether hypnotism is a practical therapeutic measure. We answer decidedly no. Only persons of a weak or unstable nervous system are amenable to hypnotic influence, and this influence is itself bad, for it increases the nervous irritability. As a therapeutic measure it is useless and unscientific to relieve symptoms in the hysterical or insane, and we have known it sometimes to relieve neuralgia, seasickness and spasmodic conditions.

CATARRH

I suffered from Catarrh 12 years. My nostrils and the throat are nearly closed almost daily, and I was obliged to use a handkerchief constantly. Ely's Cream Balm have had no symptoms of it for the last sixty years than any other physician now living, and R. G. Dunn, well known in Washington not only as a very skillful and learned member of the medical profession, but as a Christian gentleman of very high character. I refer to Hon. Harrison H. Riddleberger, who was awarded a premium of $300 for a prize essay in 1885, on the use of stimulants. I wish you had room in the Journal for the whole of the very valuable testimony they are able and accomplished physician. Dr. Lindsly says: "I have no hesitation in asserting that there is no state of the system, however exhausted or enfeebled, no species of debility, however obstinate or unyielding, no case of disease however dangerous or appalling, in which my spirits are indispensably necessary, and in which a substitute, perfectly equal to all the exigencies of the case, cannot easily be found. There is perhaps scarcely one disease in the treatment of which the patient more frequently commits a mistake than in the use of liquor. It cannot be the least doubt that great and sometimes essential injury has been inflicted upon the the unhappy dypeptic by recommending alcohol to strengthen his digestive powers and increase his appetite. The advice to drink brandy and water cannot be too strongly depreciated.

The prophet Isaiah tells us that man "through strong drink err in vision, they stumble in judgment." The mental and physical man affected, can our medical men be too careful in prescribing wine and strong drink to their patients?

MINNESOTA NEWS.

To Improve the Mississippi.

Maj. Allen, United States engineer, has recently made an important report upon the practicability and cost of making the Minnesota river navigable from Mankato to the mouth of Red Snelling, Minn. Maj. Allen finds that the stream can be made navigable for steamers drawing two feet of water by removing the impedire snags and rock obstructions at all low water locks at the mouth and points further up the river. The cost of the work he estimates would be $1,000 per mile. The dams movable in order to prevent freezing in that valley. His estimate of the cost of six locks and dams is as follows: Dam No. 1, $1,231,000; land damages, $135,975; removing snags, $18,000. Add for contingencies, $158,703; total, $1,537,738. Somebody in St. Paul jocularly sent a telegram to Hugh J. Grant, of New York, offering assistance to the distressed people of Minneapolis. Mr. Grant in reply thanks the people of St. Paul for their good intentions, but says he can get along without outside aid. Mayor Smith has appointed a committee to take charge of the original telegram, and characterizes it as the most contemptible piece of cowardliness." Gotham's mayor, it appears, failed to see the point of the witticism.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

Several private pension bills were passed.

The resolution requesting the postmaster general to inform us of the issue of the twocents colored 2 cent stamps was reported favorably.

The regular order being demanded, Mr. O'Neil, of Missouri, from the committee on labor called up the resolution assigning the second Monday (the 9th) in April for consideration of labor bills. He said that the committee had been allotted but seven minutes during the entire second session of the preceding congress, and therefore a bill could be shoehilled. After some discussion the resolution went over. Mr. Hiscock, of New York, asked leave to offer for reference a resolution for the appointment of a commission of seven members to inquire into the condition of the civil service, the methods and branches of the government, and whether the civil service act has been at all times since its passage observed and carried out, and what legislation, if any, have incred to the civil service of the government by reason of said act.

The bill authorizing the issue of fractional silver certificates passed. Yeas, 178, nays, 87, and also the bill discontinuing the coinage of $3 and $1 gold pieces.

SENATE.

The Blair bill which seeks to discriminate in favor of wounded ex-rebel soldiers over other soldiers, sailors, swindlers or civil loans in appointments to office came up.

Mr. Hale said it was very clear to him that the same discrimination now made in favor of the loyal soldier was to be made, under this bill, for the disloyal soldier. The only merit of the bill, he said, would be that he had served and been wounded or disabled in the army of the confederacy; and that was to place him above the man who had not been disabled in the Mexican war for the whole country. It made a merit of his misfortune that the applicant for office had been in the rebellious state army and had there been disabled.

Mr. Hale thought that the appointments of confederate leaders, under the proposed legislation, would be developed to potential in influence to take ample care of wounded confederate soldiers without the intervention of congress.

Mr. Hoar said that the difficulty with the proposition was that because it was a merit to have suffered in the cause of a rebellion, it was equal merit to have suffered in the cause of the confederacy. He thought that the real defect in the proposition is that in dealing with this class of persons we should say that the fact that men have rendered services to the whole country after the war is not to be set against the fact that other men have served in the army of the confederacy who may have been there wounded or incurred disease.

Messrs. Hampton, Riddleberger and Gorman supported the measure upon the kindly feeling which had prompted the introduction of the bill, but disclaimed any desire on the part of ex-confederates for the passage.

HOUSE.

Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, introduced a bill to protect free labor in the mines and industries in which it is employed from the injurious effects of convict labor; by confining the sale of goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by convicts labor to the state in which they are produced.

Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, from the committee on labor, reported the bill to establish a department of labor.

Also the bill to prevent the production of convict labor for sale in the markets for use in any department of the government. House calendar.

The Prince of Wales has telegraphed the Queen regarding the condition of the Empress Frederick to the effect that his case is extremely serious, that another relapse may be expected at any moment, probably ending fatally.

FAITHFUL DORA.

The blood-red ribbons of the storm-threatening sunset were fluttering in the west; the huge oak trees and pines of the forest were murmuring ominously, and the distant roar of the little farm-house on the edge of the woods sent up its blue column of smoke like a sheet-iron hood rising to the wayworn traveler, over the hill. And how bright and cozy the interior of the kitchen looked as Dora Klein stood on the threshold, cold, hungry and inexpressibly weary. A little girl, blue-eyed and blonde-haired, scarcely yet sixteen, with shy aspect and a shrinking mien, she had walked all the way from the city, seeking vainly for work at the various habitations that she had passed, and now at nightfall she was nearly discouraged.

"A girl!" said Mrs. Myers, dubiously, as Dora Klein preferred her meek request. "I'll see my husband hiring a girl, but I don't know anything about you."

"Please try me," faltered Dora. "I am so tired, and I know not one in the city. Please, please!" indeed I will do my best to serve you."

Mrs. Myers turned to her husband, who sat by the fire, nursing a chubby two-year-old on his foot. "What shall I do, Jacob?"

"She's a total stranger," said Mr. Myers.

"But she looks so weary and worn out."

Well, let her come in and stay all night—a bowl of bread and milk and one night's lodging won't break us."

Mrs. Myers, who was admitted into the farmer's little family, and so neat there were her arms around the girl's neck and kissed her again and again.

"James, James," she cried, almost hysterically, "you shall not send away Dora Klein again."

Mr. Myers, wiping a stray dewdrop or so from his eyes, confessed that little Dora Klein had been as true a heroine as Joan of Arc herself.

"Bob" Wheeler, the son of Samuel Wheeler, is one of the rich New Yorkers who has been through the Adirondack hunting grounds. He went to get the only recently returned from a four weeks' expedition, when the mount ains were covered with snow. His face was smeared when he first entered his, but when he came home he was about as hearty, strong and hardy as an Indian. It believes that a hunting trip in the Adirondacks is effective than all the "medicines and tonics" in New York in restoring appetite and general health and vigor.

"I went up there," he said, "to recuperate my health and to hunt, and I had good time. Hunting in the Adirondacks is great sport, I tell you, but you feel as if you would have lost when you get far back in those deep, dense forests, which have no paths or trackless, and where it is easy to get lost if you don't have an experienced guide.

"The outfitting of an expedition requires a good deal of time and does not cost a large expenditure of considerable money. In the first place, a durable hunting costume and strong shoes are to be had; a flannel shirt, a couple of pairs of heavy socks and a fishing rod are the first things to be bought of. Then the provisions, which are very tasteless, and where it is easy to get lost if you don't have an experienced guide.

Once in the hunting region plenty of venison and game can always be obtained every day with a rifle and fishing rod. Expeditions generally go out for two or three weeks. North Creek is the southern entrance to the hunting grounds of the Saccandaga Lake region. Thence you go by stage to Elton or Edinburgh, and after a night there, thence by boat 12 miles to Racquette Lake.

"The ordinary camp is built of logs, and contains three rooms. The outside of the camp is covered with hemlock or hemlock bark, and is banked in cold weather with snow and spruce boughs to keep it warm. You have to keep small animals from creeping under its walls, and you must be hanging expeditions for a small sum. One day while we were away from our camp a bear got in and ate up all our provisions and a coat and vest, and a pair of trousers, etc., but also several bars of soap."

George Elliot and Lewes.

From a Vol. of Essays by Rob. Buchanan

Conceive a little, narrow-chested man of between forty and fifty, with long, straight hair, magnificent fore head, dark yet brilliant eyes, and a manner full of alertness and intellectual grace. This was George Lewes, whom Douglas Jerrold stigmatized as the ugliest man in London. Lewes was at the same time that he had caused the chimpanzee in the Zoological Gardens to die "out of sympathy" with him like the scenic splendors of a transformation scene. He wounded hearts of wife and husband, every moment seemed an age. The house was forever full of visitors. Mrs. Myers flung the reins over the dashboard and sprang out.

"Dora! Dora! Klein!" he called, but there was no answer save the hats of the forest.

And when the lamp was lighted it shed a cheerful ray of shine and comfort; but the first corner as the child's farmer glanced revealed to him the lone figure of Dora beneath the south window had been torn away, and the treasure-room which had held the silver spoons and the stockingful of bank-notes—their little all—was empty.

"So much for your girl and her friends, Jacob!" said Mrs. Myers, in bitterness of his first anger, and Mrs. Myers burst into tears, not so much after all, at the loss of money, although that was a serious enough matter to them, as that little Dora Klein, of whom she had unconsciously grown suspected. It was unworthy of a kind thought.

That was one side of the little, every-day life story; the other was different.

Dora left the cottage; and now let us take a peep at the other. Her journey was not unbroken, but she forgot one hour, and Dora was chopping away at the heart, singing some romance, when she heard what she took for a creaking on the floor, and turning there met the gaze of her foster-father, tall, gruff-looking men in the room.

"Who are you?" demanded Dora, with feigned calm, "and what do you want?"

"Don't worry yourself, lass," said the taller of the twain, gruffly, "and you shall have no harm. We only want your neck twisted round like a chicken's.

But the other was busying himself in reconnoitering the cupboards and drawers, and Dora looked around with a volley of oaths.

"Nothing but tin and pewter," he said at last. "Where's the silver, girl?"

"We have no silver," said Dora, falteringly. "What should poor people like us do with silver?"

"The money, then. I know there is money; for I saw him coming out of the bank yesterday morning with a wad as big as my head. Out with it, and time to lose."

But Dora's upstairs, moved into the bottom of the leather-bed in the spare room," hesitated Dora. "But you won't hurt me."

"What should we hurt you for?" said the taller ruffian. "Go upstairs, Jack, and see, while I stay here and keep this girl from raising the neighborhood."

"I shall not scream," said Dora, slowly, "as there is a little contingency only. "Who is there to hear me, if did? We are two miles from a house."

"And that's true enough," said the man called Jack. Give us your knife, Cadgy, and we'll stir up the five geese feathers to some purpose. That won't trouble us."

But the heavy steps of the men had hardly sounded on the ground the stairs when Dora Klein's languid assumption of helplessness vanished. Like a winged sprite she flew across the room, and noiselessly prying up the loose boards with a knife, she caught up the japanned box and the stocking and hiding them in her apron, jumped from the low window to avoid the noise of the rusty door hinges, and struck into the woods at the back of the house.

Away over darted more swiftly through the tangled paths of the forest than did Dick Turpin until at last she sank in the deepest recesses, where no one who was not nimble as a deer and slender as herself could follow. And then, crouching down among the undergrowth, she watched and waited. As the night approached and a friendly dusk crept over hill and dale, she returned by degrees to the vicinity of the side of the woods, where the north wind moaned overhead, and crept to her whereabouts. And when at length the hoarse voices of the two ruffians, carrying down a secluded by-road, struck momentary fear to her heart, the after-silence of the night silenced every fear, the certainty that they were gone and she was safe.

Mr. Myers and Janie were setting sadly by the fire that they had just rekindled, nothing to say, and their heart to set about the preparation of the frugal supper, when a chubby door creaked on its hinges, and some thing glided in pale and silent.

Mrs. Myers and Janie spanned silver box and the stocking lay in Mrs. Myer's lap, and Dora Klein was soling on her shoulder.

"Why, Dora," exclaimed the farmer, "what does this mean?"

And Dora told her story incoherently and tearfully, between sobs, but when it was concluded, Mrs. Myers threw her arms around the girl's neck and kissed her again and again.

"James, James," she cried, almost hysterically, "you shall not send away Dora Klein again."

Mr. Myers, wiping a stray dewdrop or so from his eyes, confessed that little Dora Klein had been as true a heroine as Joan of Arc herself.

Crushed Him.

On Wednesday Arthur Warner, of Daggett Brook, met a terrible death. It seems that on the day mentioned he was engaged in cutting logs for his brother for use in building a house. He had cut around a large tree and had gone to place some logs to prevent the tree from burying itself in the snow when it came down. It will be remembered that on this day the wind was blowing hard all day long, and while Warner getting things ready the tree was blown over and he was caught under it and crushed into a shapeless mass, death resultingly instantly.

A Serious Charge.

Charles S. Hazen, who was arrested at Brainerd on Monday by Deputy United States Marshal Sweetser, upon the charge of taking from the post-office at Minneapolis, a letter not addressed to him and opening the same, was brought to this city Tuesday and arraigned before Commissioner O'Dell. He gave bail for his appearance Monday. The arrest grows out of the business complications of Hazen with R. P. Jones and the latter's father-in-law, John Campbell, who is the complaint.—Globe.

A person from reading the above would imagine that Hazen was a criminal of no small calibre, but to people on the inside and who are acquainted with the gentleman accused and the parties in the case simply itself into a mere matter of spite work. Mr. Hazen was connected with "Fish" Jones and his father-in-law in business transactions and through that medium the difficulty rose. We doubt if they prove that Mr. Hazen tampered with the United States mail.

Chief Mertz' Letter of Resignation.

Chief of Police Mertz handed the following letter to Mayor Homstead on Monday which explains itself:

To the Honorable Werner Homstead, Mayor of the City of Brainerd.

SIR:—I beg leave hereby to tender to you my resignation as Chief of Police of this city, to take effect immediately. I am loath to do this for primarily because satisfied that a considerable element of the constituency which elected you understood that I was to be incinded in certain changes expected through you in the city government; and thus believing, I gladly relieve you from any possibility of embarrassment, at the same time grateful to you for your consideration in requesting me to remain. In addition to this, I am heartily tired of the service, which, now completing a year as Chief of Police, makes fully nine years that I have been in the relation of a public officer, going in and out before your people; and I assure you that the year as Chief has been more laborious and wearisome, than any portion of the long service as sheriff. I am, therefore, glad of the opportunity to take a long needed rest.

You will permit me, in retiring from the force, with whom I part with regret on account of the warm personal relations between us, to commend them to your faithful, intelligent officers, whose places you would find it difficult to fill, and I hope sincerely that you will see your way to retain them unchanged. And also, through you, I would act to make my acknowledgements to the public, whose servant I have been, of my warm appreciation of their regard and esteem.

With best wishes for the success of your administration, and for the welfare of the good people of Brainerd.

I am, respectfully,
Your Obedient Servant,
P. MERTZ.

Brainerd, March 17th, 1888.

FACTS YOU CAN BET ON.

That the oldest and largest tobacco factory in the world is in Jersey City, N. J.

That this factory makes the popular and well-named Climax Plug, the acknowledged standard for fine-class chewing tobacco.

That this factory was established as long ago as 1826.

That last year (1887) it made and sold the enormous quantity of eighteen million, six hundred and ten of tobacco.

That this was more than one-fourth of all the tobacco made in the United States notwithstanding that there were 968 factories at work.

That in the last 4 years this factory has helped support the United States Government to the extent of over Forty-four million seven hundred thousand dollars (44,700,000.00) paid into the U. S. Treasury in Internal Revenue Taxes.

That the pay-roll of this factory is about $1,000, 000.00 per year or $20,000.00 per week.

That this factory employs about 1,500 operatives.

That this factory makes such a wonderfully good chew as Climax Plug that many other factories have tried to imitate it in vain, and in despair now try to attract custom by offering larger pieces of inferior goods for the same price.

That this factory nevertheless continues to increase its business every year.

That this factory belongs to and is operated by Yours, very truly,
P. LORILLARD & CO.
