UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM

C. E. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., and spent three, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only subsist about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was constant prey to the doctors, that I could not live. The nurse, at times, were so awful that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but none gave any lasting relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful torture, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith." ✱

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Whereas, Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage given by Harvey S. Spencer and Lillian J., his wife, mortgagors, to Fannie E. Smith, mortgagee, dated the 15th day of December, 1892, and filed for record in the office of Deeds of Crow Wing County, Minnesota, on August 11th, 1894, at 11 o'clock a. m., in Book "J" of Mortgages, on Page 304, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, $275.5, and no suit has been paid August 16th, 1895, on the mortgaged property, and no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

And, Whereas, said mortgage was duly assigned by the said Fannie E. Smith to S. Robinson by deed dated April 25th, 1895, and recorded in said Registry of Deeds April 26th, 1895, at 10 o'clock M. in Book "R" of Mortgages, Page 213, and was, by assignment, dated August 16th, A. D. 1895, and recorded in said Registry of Deeds, August 16th, A. D. 1895, at 11 o'clock a. m., in Book "R" of Mortgages, on Page 213, assigned to said S. Robinson by Fannie E. Smith.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That under a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case provided, said mortgaged premises will be sold by the sheriff of said County, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the front door of the Court House in Brainerd, in said County of Crow Wing, Minnesota, on the 7th day of October, A. D. 1895, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy said mortgage, taxes, and costs of sale, including attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage.

The premises to be sold are situated in said County, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lots 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, in Block 91 of Brainerd, Lots 17, 18, 19 and 20, in Block 113, in the Town of Brainerd. Lots 17, 18, 19 and 20, of Block 107, in the First Addition to the Town of Brainerd, etc. Lots 21 and 22, of Block 10, and Lots 21, 22, 23 and 24, of Block 17, in the Second Addition to the Town of Brainerd. Lots 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, of Block 2, and Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, of Block 5, in A. E. Taylor's Addition to the City of Brainerd, all according to the plat of said Town, and Addition of record in the aforesaid Registry of Deeds.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

SQUARE DYE.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied to the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. But of all the thumbs dear to the busy man, the Philosophic is the most valuable. Family Magazine presents every month in each issue, a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in an hour. The Conical Type indicates a love of music, poetry, and fiction. Those with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the illustrated stories of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will be gratified by the perusal of an excellent article on one of these subjects in each issue of Demorest's Magazine. The Loving Type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the Loving Flower-painters, which will appear in every number of Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this splendid work is only $2.00 a year, or 20 cents a number. To be distinguished from the best, Besides this, it contains a fine oil or water-color picture in publishing in each number of the magazine, and the articles are so popular and interesting that the circulation of the Magazine is steadily increasing. Send 20 cents for the latest number. Or Professor Demorest will send them of the thinnest and inventor of these, who will be glad to send the best, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's Magazine, the Family Magazine, and two long ago subscription; it will be sent to you for a year. Address W. Jennings Demorest, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and illustrations of family and domestic matters, will be of surprising value to every lady possessing any interest in these lines. Terms of subscription in all small sizes, standardsizes, soft, and smooth, rounded lip, three traits essential to the successful writing of another ear, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are writing for the media, send for a specimen copy. Only 20 cents. Or, better still, send $2.00 and get the magazine for a year. Demorest's Family Magazine is the best in the world. Every reader of this paper should have it. Demorest's Family Magazine is the literary treat of the whole family.

THE Defender does not belie her name. She is a defender that defends.

AND now the Minneapolis papers gravely advocate annexing St. Paul. This is adding insult to injury.

THE city of Fergus Falls has voted $25,000 bonds, and with the proceeds will put in a system of electric lighting.

THE city papers are daily publishing long editorials against the "curfew" law, while the smaller towns are adopting it with excellent results.

THE public debt has increased over $300,000,000 in the last two years, and yet in the face of this record Grover has the nerve to want a third term.

ST. PAUL secures the next national encampment of the G. A. R. That would be a good time for the old boy to take a census if he wishes to keep up with his sister Minnie.

ONE of the noticeable features at the state fair now in progress is the absence of fakirs of all kinds. The public at large is very thankful that the nuisance has been abated.

THE school enrollment of this city last year was 1640. Using the usual multiple of five, we have a population of 8,200. Judged by this test, Brainerd did not show as large a population in the recent census as she ought.

AT West Superior the saloons have been re-opened for Sunday customers, and gambling has been resumed. They should now reinstate Mayor Starkweather, and turn the devil loose. The moral wave has passed in that city probably never to return.

IT is now confidently asserted that Maryland and Kentucky will go republican this fall. Such idiocy as has been displayed by the democratic party in conducting national affairs for the past two years ought to drive even Texas into the republican ranks.

Napoleons of Finance.

Several of the leading illustrated magazines have entered the field with lives of Napoleon, and several new volumes of memoirs and reminiscences have just appeared. The reason for this sudden revival of interest in the Corsican no one seems able to guess. With as much cause, we mention as brilliant and as brief a career in the field of speculation, that of Henry S. Ives, called "the young Napoleon of Finance." This is a summary: At 18, fresh from the farm, an office-boy for Harpers at $2 a week; at 19, clerk at $6 a week; at 20, Wall street broker's clerk, salary $10 a week; at 21, a broker himself, capital $50; at 22, principal owner Mineral Range railroad, and had "made" $838,000; at 22½, controlled Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, from which he "milked" $2,000,000; at 23½, held an option on entire Baltimore & Ohio railroad system; at 23, assigned with liabilities $20,000,000, assets $21,000,000; at 24, arrested for larceny and misappropriation of $5,000,000; at 25, tried and imprisoned; at 25½, free; at 27, makes a big "deal" in a dry goods house consolidation; at 30, died. Such Napoleons, like their prototype, are of no benefit to the world. Those whom we most admire are the Captains of Industry, like our great manufacturers and the projectors, builders and managers of our railroads, such as the Burlington system, which makes commercial and social intercourse easy for the people of eleven populous and popular states. For maps, tickets, etc., call on any ticket agent, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

New "Cash Grocery" Firm.

J. C. Smallwood has taken a partner in the grocery business, W. G. Percy being the new member of the firm, the style of which will be Smallwood & Percy. The stock, which is at present located on Sixth street south, will be removed on Monday next to the old Co-operative stand at the corner of Eighth and Main streets, and the building is being fitted up this week for the reception of the new firm. The institution will be run on a strictly cash basis, and prices will be made accordingly. Butter, eggs, wood, hay, etc., will be bought or exchanged from the farmers and barn accommodations for teams will be given free.

A Serious Wreck.

One of the most disastrous collisions which has occurred in the Northwest took place at Melby, on the Great Northern road, Wednesday morning, in which five people lost their lives, all railroad employes. The accident was occasioned by the engineer of one of the passenger trains forgetting his orders, and as a result the trains came together at a full rate of speed. The engineer of No. 2, J. R. Emerson, was a brother of Mrs. Fred S. Parker, of this city, and the Pioneer Press has to say of him:

Engineer J. R. Emerson, of No. 2, was 43 years of age, and had been eighteen years in the service of the Great Northern. When only seventeen he served under W. C. Gardner, one of the first engineers of the road. Emerson was for some years employed on the Omaha, but finally went back to the line on which he had served his apprenticeship. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and universally liked. His acquaintanceship in St. Paul was very extensive. He was a widower and lived with his sister at 221 North Western avenue. He leaves a married son, a daughter, and a boy of seven years. Only a short time ago he went East and brought his mother home with him.

DOWNED THE WOULD-BE CHAMPIONS

Brainerd Takes Two Games From the M. P. & P. Co. Nine and Settles the Championship Question.

Frank Howe Pitches in Fine Form Allowing the Visitors Only Three Hits. Other Base Ball Gossip.

The ball game last Saturday afternoon at Athletic Park between Brainerd and the crack Minnesota Provision & Packing Co. nine, of St. Paul, was one of the very best games played here for some time, and both teams played ball for all they were worth, the visitors being defeated by a score of 8 to 7, amid great excitement. In the fourth inning Captain Burquin started the ball rolling by knocking out a pretty two-bagger, scoring two runs, and scored two more latter on errors, making the score 4 to 0. In the fifth the visitors made three runs on a single and two errors. Brainerd went out in short order in the fifth, Comiskey striking out Frary and Quinn, and Howe going out to first on a ground hit. In the sixth the visitors added two runs to their score on two hits and errors. Brainerd received another goose egg in the sixth, and the score stood 4 to 5 in favor of the visitors, and the crowd began to get uneasy. Frank Howe stepped into the box at the beginning of the seventh and received a grand ovation from his many admirers. The visitors got two runs in the seventh on a two-bagger and on error, which proved to be their last. In the seventh, with the score 7 to 4 against them, Brainerd started in to win out, and Bert Page, one clever first baseman, got a present of four balls and walked to first, but did not stay there long, as Frary lined the ball out for a homer. The visitors received a goose egg in the eighth. Brainerd made two earned runs in the eighth on hits by Burquin and Jack Page. Our boys donated another goose egg to the visitors in the ninth, and the crowd breathed easy once more, for Brainerd had won, the score standing 7 to 8. Jack Page was in the box for six innings and pitched a good, steady game, holding the visitors down to four hits. Frank Howe made three pretty catches in center. Capt. Burquin put up a great game at short and at the bat. He had seven assists and four put-outs, and made three hits and scored two runs. All the boys put up a magnificent game, and demonstrated that they were superior to any other amateur team in the Northwest. The visitors are all good ball players and put up a fine game. Batteries, Jack Page, Howe and Frary for Brainerd, and Comiskey and Keefe for the visitors. Following is the score by innings and the summary:

Brainerd .....0 0 0 4 0 0 2 2 x—8
M. P. & P. Co..0 0 0 0 3 2 2 0 0—7

Earned runs, Brainerd 5, M. P. & P. Co., 3; base hits, Brainerd 10, M. P. & P. Co., 6; two base hits, Burquin, J. Page, Quinn, Austin and Gahan; home runs, Frary; base on balls, by Page 2, Howe 2, Comiskey 5; struck out, by Page 2, Howe 2, Comiskey 4; left on bases, Brainerd 7, M. P. & P. Co., 7; time of game, 1:55; umpire, E. C. Gates.

SUNDAY'S GAME.

The second game was called Sunday afternoon at 3:50 by Umpire Hill before a fair sized crowd, and those present witnessed the finest game of ball ever played in this city, and far outclassed the majority of the league games, and if the boys put up such a game on the 23rd, when the All-America team plays here, they will have no trouble in defeating them. Frank Howe was in the box for Brainerd and proved a puzzle to the visitors, only allowing them three safe hits. Capt. Burquin, who played third, put up another fine game, accepting six chances without an error, and again carried off the batting honors, making three hits, including a two-bagger, and made three of the seven runs. Howe and Billy McCarthy both showed up well at the bat, each making two hits. Up to the seventh inning the game was one of the most exciting and interesting ever seen here, the score standing 1 to 2, in favor of the visitors, but in the seventh the Brainerd sluggers jumped on Munch for four safe hits, including a two-bagger by Chas. McCarthy, which netted four earned runs, and scored two more in the eighth. The visitors only scored in two innings, two in fourth and one in the eighth. In the seventh it looked as if the visitors would be able to score for on one was out and the bases were full, but Munch went out at the plate, and Jahnke getting to first, which still left the bases full, but the game was soon over, for Jahnke knocked a grounder to Quinn, who threw Keefe out at the plate and Frary caught Jahnke before he got to first, which made the neatness double play ever seen witnessed on the diamond this season, and the game was over, the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of Brainerd. Batteries, Howe and Frary for Brainerd, and Munch and Keefe for the visitors. Following is the score by innings and the summary:

Brainerd .....0 1 0 0 0 0 4 2 x—7
M. P. & P. Co..0 0 0 2 0 0 0 1 0—3

Earned runs, Brainerd 6, M. P. & P. Co., 9; two base hits, Burquin, C. McCarthy, Gahan; base on balls, off Howe 4, off Munch 3; struck out, by Howe 6, by Munch 6; left on bases, Brainerd 7, M. P. & P. Co., 11; double plays, Quinn to Frary to Bert Page; time, 1:35; umpire, Bobby Hill.

Eight of the Brainerd base ball players were in the city Monday evening. What for? To see their best girls.—St. Peter Tribune.

Brainerd vs. Fort Snelling Saturday and Sunday.

The boys are making grand preparations for their dance which occurs on Friday evening, Sept. 20th. Dressell's full orchestra will furnish the music. Everybody welcome.

Buy a ticket to the base ball dance which occurs in Gardner Hall on Friday evening, Sept. 20th, and help the individual members of the club.

In the two games played last Saturday and Sunday Capt. Burquin accepted 17 chances without an error, made six safe hits, including two two-baggers, and scored five runs.

Bobby Hill, "king of the third baseman," had the misfortune to slip his finger badly while practicing last Saturday. He will be able to take a hand at the games Saturday and Sunday against Fort Snelling.

The Brainerd base ball club passed through here Tuesday morning on route for home, after an almost victorious tour over the state. The reason the Brainerd boys have met with so much success is because they play ball all of the time.—St. Peter Journal.

Frank Howe, of Brainerd, met with an accident on the river bridge Sunday night. He was going at a rapid pace over the bridge on his wheel and had a collision with a team going in the opposite direction. The wheel was badly demolished and Howe's mighty right arm was injured.—St. Peter Journal.

Captain Burquin and several members of the Brainerd ball team were in town Sunday evening for a short while and accounted for their Mankato defeats by a want of pitchers. They have now but one pitcher on the team and he simply cannot do all of the work. In their present crippled condition they have cancelled all future dates and return home. Mr. Burquin is anxious to locate the whole Brainerd team in St. Peter next year or so much of it as is needed here to fill out a first-class team, and this will in all probability be done. They regard St. Peter as the best ball town in the state outside the two cities, and say that the whole Brainerd team would like to wear St. Peter uniforms next season. He had a long talk with base ball enthusiasts and a verbal agreement has been made, and with Denzer, Pettijohn, Couplin, Toland and the Brainerd aggregation to select from, St. Peter will next year have a ball team for your eye.—St. Peter Herald.

Brainerd may well feel proud of their wonderful base ball team which has represented this city so well at home and abroad. It is no idle boast to say that the Brainerd team have played more amateur ball this season than any other team in the United States, and have a better average in the games won and lost. The boys have played 50 games up to date, and have lost but eight, which is a record that any city should be proud of. Four or five of the games were lost at the commencement of the season when we were handicapped by lack of players. While Brainerd may be a progressive town, it is lacking, to a certain extent, in that love for the greatest and most scientific game on the face of the earth today, a game so attractive and full of so many skillful plays that it may be called the king of all games. Brainerd has been represented by a wonderful team during the past season, but never before has she received into her fold a team so capable and so willing to uphold the honor of the city on the diamond. It has been nip and tuck with the management of the team to make both ends meet. The attendance at the games here this season have been very small, and as a natural consequence the team has lost money on several games here this season. Let everybody turn out Saturday and Sunday and witness the games between Fort Snelling and Brainerd, and show that you appreciate a first-class ball team.

Term of Court Over.

The business to come before the district court was closed on Tuesday evening, at which time court adjourned. The cases disposed of after this paper was issued last week, were as follows:

Michael Jones vs. B. & N. M. Ry., personal damage suit, verdict for plaintiff for $650.

A. P. Riggs vs. Hulda Johnson, to recover premiums advanced on insurance policies, verdict for plaintiff for $47.04.

J. W. Copeland vs. John Babar, to recover wages claimed to be due, verdict for plaintiff for $165.

G. G. Hartley vs. R. J. Hartley, to recover on land contract, jury disagreed.

City of Brainerd vs. Capt. Carter and others, an appeal from the municipal court, verdict for the defendants.

Estella Drake was granted a divorce from W. J. Drake.

Pap. Thomas Post has been issued an invitation to the Relief Corps for Saturday evening at which time refreshments will be served and a social evening enjoyed.

W. C. T. U. Report.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Brainerd, has held, since the last annual meeting, which occurred July 16th, 1895, four meetings, which consisted of devotional exercises and the transaction of such business as was brought before the Union.

Three W. C. T. U. coffees have been held during this time. The first was given at the home of Mrs. C. B. Thompson, who kindly opened her house for us and did much to make the occasion a pleasant one.

The second coffee was held with Mrs. J. Wickham, who was, as usual, untiring in her efforts to contribute to the pleasure and profit of the gathering.

An ice cream social was held on the evening of August 21st at the Y. M. C. A. building. Plans had been made to hold the social in the Y. M. C. A. park, but on account of the storm we were compelled to move indoors.

Many thanks are due to Mr. Synder secretary of the Y. M. C. A., for his assistance, and also to Messrs. Bean and McKay for loaning and delivering handlight and lanterns for illuminating the park.

On the afternoon of Sept. 4th a coffee was held at the pleasant home of Mrs. Rhodes, who is a member of the W. C. U. T. in Ohio in crusade days.

The Union has raised, since July 10th, 1895, $27.

The drinking fountain has been presented to the city and is now in operation, being set and supplied with water at the expense of the city.

We have dispensed charity to six families in destitute circumstances, and have sent flowers to the sick and the N. P. Sanitarium and at the Lumbermen's Hospital.

IVORY BILLIARD BALLS.

How the Spheres Are Made and Prepared For the Market.

When in the factory, the tusks are carefully examined by an expert to detect any possible flaws or cracks that may exist, for besides the dangers to the ivory from careless handling while in transit the original possessor of the ivory is by no means so careful of his tusks as he ought to be, considering their value, and with the utmost disregard of the precious material of which they are composed uses them for fighting, for uprooting small trees and shrubs, for overturning stones and for grubbing in the ground without any very definite purpose that is apparent to the human observer. Of course he often splits his tusks, and a very minute crack, hardly visible to the naked eye, will seriously impair the value of a long and beautiful piece of ivory. If the crack is extensive, the tusk must be devoted to another purpose than that of making billiard balls, but supposing the tusk to be found perfect it is passed on to another expert, who measures it and marks it at proper distances to be cut into blocks.

It is then sawed into lengths of 2 1-2 to 3 inches, according to the size of the balls to be made, and the resulting blocks are passed on into the hands of the turners. Turning lathes of unusual accuracy and delicacy are put to work, and the ivory savedust begins flying in all directions, not to be lost, however. Ivory is too precious to be wasted. Every speck of the dust is carefully gathered up at the end of each day's work. When a sufficient quantity has been accumulated, it is treated with chemicals and by means of a peculiar cement and the use of a hydraulic press is molded into a compact and apparently homogeneous mass. From these compressed blocks are manufactured many small articles, which present all the appearance of ivory and are in reality such, though not in its original state.

On account of the value of the material the utmost care is used in the cutting, and the peculiar shape of the blocks enables an economy that would not be suspected. Every one has seen ivory martingale rings, but every one does not know that those come from the two ends of the ivory block that is being turned into shape for a billiard ball. They are cut out with as much care as the ball itself and afterward rounded and polished with the same scrupulous attention.

The ball itself, after being roughly turned, is laid aside for at least six months to season and harden, for the ivory, when freshly cut, is very soft, or at least very much softer than it afterward becomes, and when the seasoning is properly effected the turning is completed, and the polishing, at first by a very ingenious machine, is continued with prepared chalk and shamois, then with the leather alone and finally completed with the bare palms of the operator.

The ball is now finished, so far as the mechanical processes of manufacture are concerned, and passed on to the wholesale and retail dealers, but the risk is by no means ended when the work is done, for few materials are so sensitively atmospheric and temperature changes as ivory, and at almost any moment the ball may become lessened in value by the appearance on its surface of tiny cracks or flaws. If these are superficial, they impair only the looks of the ball, but sometimes they dive far into the interior and the ball will then break in two or chip with rough usage.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Negro Burial Societies.

The burial societies are numerous. It is the ambition of every colored man and woman to have a conscientious funeral, and this is got by pooling their interests. The dues of the burial societies are much larger than those of the matrimonial associations, being usually $1, and when a member dies there is a fund of $200 or $400 to buy his casket and furnish flowers and carriages and pay the expenses of a band. It is usual to hold all funerals on Sunday, too, so as to secure a larger attendance.—Savannah Letter in Chicago

Beware!

Of Setting Forest and Prairie Fires.

OFFICE OF STATE FOREST COMMISSIONER,
ST. PAUL, MINN., May, 1895.

Under the act of the legislature of Minnesota for the preservation of forests and for the prevention and suppression of forest and prairie fires, approved April 18, 1895,

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three years:

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms, or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50.

Any railroad employe who willfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years, or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

R. C. DUNN, (State Auditor)
Forest Commissioner.

C. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

Steel vs. Cast Iron.

Steel has superceded iron in all structural work where the greatest strength and durability are required. The old-fashioned cast-iron stove has made way for the

which is made of cold-rolled steel (the strongest steel) and malleable iron (iron that, by an expensive process, is made unbreakable), and the whole construction is riveted by hand (the honest way).

The MAJESTIC is built on honor to last the user a lifetime—a long lifetime.

"The union situation grows more interesting every day to the progress of the revolutionists as belligerents by the government of the United States.

It costs an American girl who marries an Italian prince $12,000 a year to get rid of him. There have been no recent transactions to fix the quotations on British dukes.

Pugilist Corbett complains that he is not understood by the public. If that is the case it is certainly not "Gentleman" Jim's own fault. He has lost no opportunity of making his true character apparent to everybody within reach of telegraphic news.

If the architect who planned Chicago's coliseum to hold 40,000 people and builded a little better he would probably have been the cause of a new public calamity. Fortunately, his big trap tumbled down before it was completed, and while all the workmen were absent.

Sending an infernal machine through the mails in order to reach a potentate is a characteristic act of the anarchist. The chances are that some hard-working clerk or letter carrier will be killed, but this is of no consequence to the anarchist.

Have the legislatures of England seen a great light? The advocates of women's suffrage number but 222 out of 670 in the present parliament, while in the last they were within thirty of a majority. This may be accident, but on the other hand it may be the working of the leaven of righteousness.

In one of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's latest effusions she says that there are only two kinds of people in the world, those who lift and those who lean. It often happens that the verse of this singer contains more truth than poetry, and this article is not a fair instance of that peculiarity.

The new man is rapidly developing that combination of insidious method of getting even which has been the sole resource of the fair sex for many years. When life becomes intolerable you may sue your mother-in-law for trespass and, mayhap, get $20,000 for your invaded precincts and your damaged peace of mind.

The wine crop will be short in France, but California reports a bountiful harvest of grapes, especially of the fine white varieties. The yield will be greater than that of last year and the quality better. No doubt France will be a heavy buyer of the wines for export later under French labels.

There is danger of some of the potato crop rotting in the ground unless freight rates are lowered so that it will pay to ship the tubers. More starch could be needed to use up the potato problem. Shipped in the form of starch, which is a light article, the freight does not cut so much figure.

The latest bicycle is reported to weigh only seven pounds. Some Yankee will soon appear with a combination of hydrogen gas and magnets that will eliminate the weight of the machine altogether. Then when Elijah applies the automatic motor the problem of flying will be solved.

A learned etymologist is trying to trace the word "fad" through the Welsh language back to the Aryan root, from which the word "mad" also originated. It is far easier to believe that so modern a word is an abbreviation of fiddle-faddle, and one of those colloquial inventions that, in spite of their popularity, are of unknown authorship.

This year has been notable for disasters in the Alps, several distinguished persons having lost their lives in mountain climbing. This comes from fool handy ventures into unknown regions of snow and ice without guides. Among the victims are Baron Kgerr, of Munich, who attempted to ascend Parseyer Point alone.

The New York Post Office is sending out letters stamped with the name of the office and the date and hour of arrival or departure in poorly legible, horizontal lines. Thus passes away the time-honored circular blotch upon which untold millions have sharpened their eyes and ingenuity and cultivated a crick in the neck.

In view of our magnificent American scenery and the hundreds of beautiful and interesting places which at home invite the tourist, it seems a pity that American visitors in London this summer have spent $20,000,000 in that metropolis alone. This is as nothing to the much vaster sums expended this year by our countrymen and women in other portions of great Britain and on the continent.

Justin McCarthy, who still takes a hopeful view of Irish chances, says the Irish members of parliament do most of their speaking when their political chances are in power. This is, unfortunately, true, and the circumstance is the reverse of hopeful. The remarks which they do for the next few years will not hurt the home rule cause greatly, for it would have no chance in any event in the present parliament.

It is estimated that the amount of money actually invested in the street railroads of the country—stocks and bonds—is all—$300,000,000. But these roads are capitalized for $885,000,000, or at an average rate of over $95,000 per mile, which is nearly double that of the steam railroads, and the inference follows that there must be a good deal of water in their securities. However, they pay good dividends upon the enormous capitalization, and that is the point of most importance after all.

Pedestrians who are astonished when run down by bicyclists do not know, of course, that a man weighing 150 pounds and moving at the rate of ten feet per second (or only about seven miles per hour) has a momentum of 1,500 pounds, exclusive of the weight of the wheel. A collision between two wheels, each with a 150-pound rider, spinning at the moderate speed of seven miles per hour, would result in a smash-up with a force of 3,000 pounds. It is easy to understand, therefore, why bicycle accidents are often so serious and why great care should be taken to avoid them.

The Shadow of a Crime.

It was a dull, rainy day in the early autumn. Mr. Medlicott, who, dressed in a flannel dressing gown, was crouching over the fire. Of the man whom he was about to introduce to murder that name there was little that was recognizable. His hair had grown white as snow, his cheeks were pinched and hollow, his lips bloodless, his complexion leaden-hued. There were dark rings beneath the dull, sunken eyes, and there was an air of utter prostration about the figure.

Luke Abershaw was seated at the table writing, but now and again he cast furtive glances in the direction of the sick man.

Presently he arose, and stirred the fire, and put some coals upon it.

"Is there anything I can get or do for you, sir?" he inquired.

"No, thank you, Luke. But leave your writing for a time and come and sit down near me. I have something important to say to you," was the answer.

Luke did as he was bid, and then Mr. Medlicott went on:

"I shall never get over this illness".

"Oh, sir!"

"No, Luke, I am feel it. I know my days are numbered—that I am not long for this world."

His voice quivered as he spoke, and he finished the sentence with a sob which he tried hard to suppress.

"Before it is too late," he resumed, "Luke would like another word, I wish to mark my gratitude to you. We have known each other but a very short time, Luke, but it has been long enough for me to learn your worth. You have been the one devoted son to me, and I know you in every respect a most worthy young man. I have no son, no child to whom I can leave any positive claim upon me, for my nephew is well-provided for. You have known the bitter want of money, and will, therefore, prize it when you possess it. Luke, after certain small bequests I shall leave to Claribles and a small annuity to Desmond, I intend to make you my heir."

A crimson flush leaped into the secretary's face, but by an effort he suppressed his emotion, and replied:

"Oh, Mr. Medlicott! You must not do this, indeed you must not, what would the world say? That I had taken advantage of my position."

"I will take good care that they shall not think so," interrupted the sick man, vehemently. "Now, write off to Mr. Hughton, my managing clerk, to be here by 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. I feel I have no time to lose."

With many expressions of depression and of his belief that he greatly exaggerated his condition, Luke Abershaw sat down and wrote the letter with a hand he could not steady enough to form the characters.

"Luke," said Mr. Medlicott, when he had signed the letter and sealed it, "what does the doctor say about me now, don't deceive me. I can bear to hear the worst—a man with a clear conscience should not fear death."

"A man with a clear conscience should not fear death," repeated the secretary, with a strange look and a marked emphasis. "You have a clear conscience, sir?"

"All clear, I must men, Luke," answered Mr. Medlicott, not noticing the peculiarity of his tone.

"To a man who has robbed another of his birthright it must be a terrible thing to die."

"It must, Luke; it must."

From under his heavy brows the secretary cast a strange inquiring look upon the white face that was staring into the fire.

I have never been fond in my life upon my word, the evil-doer and the evil-doer," pursued Mr. Medlicott, half speaking to himself.

Luke's face darkened.

"Should they not be left to a higher power than ours?" he said.

Mr. Medlicott did not seem to hear the last question, for he said, abruptly:

"Luke, do you know that within the last few days a horrible thought, a horrible fear has come upon me which I don't know how, or why," and grasping the hand and sinking his voice to a whisper, he added, "it is, is that I am being slowly poisoned."

Half prepared as he was for the shock, Luke could have suggested such an idea?" he faltered.

"Many things," Mr. Medlicott went on, in the same nervous whisper, and looking furtively round as though he feared to be overheard, "I know the doctor does not understand my malady. I have watched his face, noted his looks. I have observed symptoms."

"But who could be guilty of such diabolical wickedness? Who is there you could possibly suspect?"

Mr. Medlicott released his hold and turned away from the fire, and his face seemed to struggle with his thoughts for a moment.

"God forgive me, if I suspect wrong, Luke," he went on presently, "but I am stood between her and her love, and such things have been before."

"Good Lord, you can't mean"—

"Hush, don't speak the name. But don't let that feeling of mistrust lead—let Martha bring it. I didn't like the servants to see me so much changed at first, but that feeling has passed away. It is gone now."

And the sad invalid buried his face in his hands while every nerve quivered convulsively with his repressed sobs.

It would have seemed almost impossible that Luke Abershaw's features could grow whiter than their usual color, but under his sick man's words they had become as ashen as any; and he had twice to set his parched lips before he could speak.

"I am sure you wrong her, sir; it is too dreadful to think of—your own flesh and blood too."

"No, no; she is only an adopted child, that is all."

"Of course, I know she is not your daughter; but, as a relative of your wife's"—

"None, none; we look her out of a workhouse, but don't let us speak now more about her—never let her look upon her face again. I cannot bear the sight of it."

"But if you had any such suspicion, sir, ought there not to be an investigation?" persisted the secretary.

"No, no—there must be no scandal—you can send her away from the house. Yes, that will be away, then we shall see if I get better."

When Mr. Medlicott had retired to rest that night Luke Abershaw shut himself in the library, and, drawing an easy chair close to the fire, gave himself up to meditation.

His face would have been a curious study for a character-reader, as, now depressed, always evil; as the flickering light of the fire played upon its lineaments it resembled nothing so much as the fiendish heads with which the monks of old loved to adorn the outward walls of their churches.

At times he broke into muttered disjointed soliloquy:

"Why should conscience reproach me when it is dead within me? standing on the brink of the grave as I am, to boast a clear conscience that does not bear close scrutiny. Is not the discovery of my poor father, and of me—for whatever I have done or do, must rest at his door. That my revenge is a just one is proved by the strange manner that his heart has been turned towards me. Should I not accept that as a sign?"

Then again, after a long silence:

"The extent to which this self-deception can be carried is inconceivable. Who could have supposed so hear that man speak, that he had ever wronged a fellow-creature? Oh, no! he had only he harsh to the evil-doer —my father was what this precision would call an evil-doer. Vile Pharisee! he deserves his fate were it twice as dreadful as it is."

"Since I am so nse here, why should I remain?" she thought. "I am evidently hateful to him, and he would be glad to be rid of me. But what would everybody think of it? I were to quit the household at such a time as this? No, I must remain, at least until he is better."

Throughout the house there was a general feeling of gloom and uneasiness, an instinct of pretending evil.

Every one felt that there was something wrong, that there was something mysterious in Mr. Medlicott's illness.

BADGES OF MATRIMONY.

Worn by All Other Nations, but Tabooed by American Women.

Americans are the only women in the world who do not exhibit some sign of matrimony, says a writer in the Buffalo Express. Of course, those who follow in the wake of European etiquette would not appear with their daughters' hair "parted in the middle" strings, but the universal American woman buys what she likes, regardless of whether it be matronly or not, and her daughters will select articles of dress only suitable to young women.

As in no other country is this the case. Among the Germans the badge of a married woman consists of a little cap or bood, of which they are very proud, and "donning the cap" is a feature of the wedding day. Among the peasants of certain localities.

The married women of Little Russia are always seen, even in the hottest weather, with a thick cloth of dark hue twisted about the head. Among the New Guinea a young woman lets her hair hang about her shoulders until she is married, but when she is married she has it cut short. Solomon mentions in his song their luxuriant hair. In Wadai the wives rouge their lips by tatooing them with the juice of the acacia and blacken their teeth with iron filings. In parts of Africa married women shave the hair from the edges of their ears and lips and stick rows of glass stalks in them, and among the Canada Mongolian race of people, the Manitlies, the women wear pendants from their ear a little bone fact full of cotton, to which a spindle is attached.

They belong to a tribe of about forty persons who have no settled home, and who call themselves people, the Manthes, the women wear long hair reaching from their ears a little bit full of cotton, to which a spindle is attached.

Again he dropped into his chair and fell into a silent reverie from which he was aroused by the church clock striking the hour.

"I have not yet posted up my diary," he said, taking up his book and the writing table from a locked drawer in which he took forth a thick book. "Day by day since the first arrival at my house Luke Abershaw had written about me, and I have not failed in any part of the country. I'll try and find out something about him. Let me see," and by. He said this girl was taken out of a workhouse. I always understood she was a poor relation of Mrs. Medlicott's; as such she would have been treated, but that never is."

"I have not yet posted up my diary," he said, taking up his book and the writing table from a locked drawer in which he took forth a thick book. "Day by day since the first arrival at my house Luke Abershaw had written about me, and I have not failed in any part of the country. I'll try and find out something about him. Let me see," and by. He said this girl was taken out of a workhouse. I always understood she was a poor relation of Mrs. Medlicott's; as such she would have been treated, but that never is."

"Why, sir, I am sure I never"—

"Hush, don't speak the name. But don't let that feeling of mistrust lead—let Martha bring it. I didn't like the servants to see me so much changed at first, but that feeling has passed away. It is gone now."

And the sad invalid buried his face in his hands while every nerve quivered convulsively with his repressed sobs.

It would have seemed almost impossible that Luke Abershaw's features could grow whiter than their usual color, but under his sick man's words they had become as ashen as any; and he had twice to set his parched lips before he could speak.

"I am sure you wrong her, sir; it is too dreadful to think of—your own flesh and blood too."

"No, no; she is only an adopted child, that is all."

"Of course, I know she is not your daughter; but, as a relative of your wife's"—

"None, none; we look her out of a workhouse, but don't let us speak now more about her—never let her look upon her face again. I cannot bear the sight of it."

"But if you had any such suspicion, sir, ought there not to be an investigation?" persisted the secretary.

"No, no—there must be no scandal—you can send her away from the house. Yes, that will be away, then we shall see if I get better."

When Mr. Medlicott had retired to rest that night Luke Abershaw shut himself in the library, and, drawing an easy chair close to the fire, gave himself up to meditation.

His face would have been a curious study for a character-reader, as, now depressed, always evil; as the flickering light of the fire played upon its lineaments it resembled nothing so much as the fiendish heads with which the monks of old loved to adorn the outward walls of their churches.

At times he broke into muttered disjointed soliloquy:

"Why should conscience reproach me when it is dead within me? standing on the brink of the grave as I am, to boast a clear conscience that does not bear close scrutiny. Is not the discovery of my poor father, and of me—for whatever I have done or do, must rest at his door. That my revenge is a just one is proved by the strange manner that his heart has been turned towards me. Should I not accept that as a sign?"

Then again, after a long silence:

"The extent to which this self-deception can be carried is inconceivable. Who could have supposed so hear that man speak, that he had ever wronged a fellow-creature? Oh, no! he had only he harsh to the evil-doer —my father was what this precision would call an evil-doer. Vile Pharisee! he deserves his fate were it twice as dreadful as it is."

Another pause and then:

"Without my knowledge of the past I should have passed upon the hypocrite as the purest of men, patriotism, self-sufficient, but I could never have respected him or felt a crime. There cannot be my mistake, the torn, half-de faced letter is one of those in which he dying moments was from this man. I have compared writing and signature since I have been here, and there can be no mistake, only a deeper depth of hypocrisy than I am willing with my experience, had dreamed of."

Again some time elapsed during which his face was contracted, and he thought went on in silence.

"What, if I were to hear about this girl"—he muttered presently—"she is no sorry one, but I have never done anything, directly, to cause suspicion on her; self-preservation demanded that there should be some one in the background should suspicion be aroused; unfortunately for her circumstances marked her out as the person. There is no choice between her and me. But now comes the difficulty. He has told me to send her away as a child. If I do so, and anything happens after she is gone, suspicion is removed from me and falls upon—whom? The man who was the husband, Medlicott's fortune? Not improbably. But there would be no proof. Still it would be better there should be no risk.

At this point he rose from his seat and walked up and down the room.

"I will write to Mr. Hughton," he muttered again; "there is a look in her eyes at times that reminds me of my little sister. I wonder what became of her? I might have inquired but I never more shall be troubled with that part of the country. I'll try and find out something about her. Let me see," and by. He said this girl was taken out of a workhouse. I always understood she was a poor relation of Mrs. Medlicott's; as such she would have been treated, but that never is."

Again he dropped into his chair and fell into a silent reverie from which he was aroused by the church clock striking the hour.

"I have not yet posted up my diary," he said, taking up his book and the writing table from a locked drawer in which he took forth a thick book. "Day by day since the first arrival at my house Luke Abershaw had written about me, and I have not failed in any part of the country. I'll try and find out something about him

About two weeks ago there were seventeen cases of typhoid fever at the Sanitarium at one time. None were from this city, all being brought in from off the road.

M. Hagberg threshed the grain on his large farm east of town the latter part of last week and reports a fine yield. He had 26 acres of wheat that averaged 31 bushels to the acre, and 100 acres of oats that averaged 45 bushels to the acre. He will have over 5,000 bushels of grain.

The scenery and properties used in the "Fast Mail" tests the capacity of one of the N. P. R. R. largest baggage cars, and judging from the press criticism, from other towns, there is a rare treat in store for all lovers of the drama in Brainerd tomorrow (Saturday) night. There is already a good sale of seats, and no doubt but the house will be crowded.

Over thirteen hundred scholars were enrolled in the public schools on the first day of the present term. Over a hundred of these were in the Harrison building in the Fourth ward, or an average of fifty to a room, the building containing only four rooms. It will thus be seen that this building is already too small to accommodate the children of that ward.

J. H. Koop, one of the pioneer merchants of Brainerd, was at the Nicollet yesterday. Mr. Koop came to Brainerd when that place was fresh from the impetus given it by the location of the Northern Pacific shops, and watched it grow to a thriving city. When the division terminus were removed to Staples, he followed the procession, and now rides horses in both cities with equal ease.—Minneapolis Times.

Prof. O. M. Hascom, of Minneapolis, will deliver his "Illustrated Lectures on a Trip Through Wonderland and Alaska" in the Sleeper Opera House, on Monday night at 8 p. m. St. Margaret's Guild, of St. Paul's Church have charge of the arrangements, and a quartette of young ladies will act as ushers. The Chippewa Falls Herald says under date of Aug. 8th: "The views were excellent and well described, and the audience one of the best ever gathered in this city." Admission 25c. Children 15c. Come and bring your children.

On Sunday evening about 7 o'clock fire was discovered in a room in the upper story of the dwelling house at the corner of Seventh and Kingwood streets, owned by R. F. Walters, and occupied by Wm. Woods. The department was called out and had the blaze under control before any serious damage was done. Just how the fire originated is not known, and the fact that the house is lighted by electricity and that the room had not been entered by any of the family for some hours before it was discovered to be on fire, leaves it hard to explain. The house and contents were insured.

Last Sunday, while out boating with two young ladies, Herman Casey, one of the party who were spending the day at "The Rogue's Haunt," at Long Lake, had the exciting experience of seeing a "sea serpent." While the serpent made no active demonstrations, the meeting quite unnerved Mr. Casey, and caused one of the young ladies to faint. Had it not been for the quieting effect of "Soothing Syrup," (Winslow's), with which the party was well supplied, the consequences might have been far worse. Little can be learned from Mr. Casey as to the appearance of the "serpent."

The Little Falls Transcript says a shooting affray is reported from near Mille Lacs lake, said to have occurred one day last week. An Indian named Young Shakopee is said to have become involved in a quarrel with a white man, whose name is not given, over Bay stumpage, during which the latter shot the Indian, inflicting probably a fatal wound. The report has not been verified and we cannot vouch for its authenticity. The Indians near Mille Lacs have been putting up hay for the lumbermen who operate in that vicinity, and as stumpage is quite scarce, owing to the terrible fire last year, there has been considerable of a rush for it, and the quarrel reported is a very probable one.

A Milaca telegram to the Minneapolis Journal says "200 men are expected here to begin work on the extension of the new road to Brainerd."

City Attorney McClenahan, Auditor Tache, A. F. Ferris and Ed. Britton left this morning for Backus, where they will make a tour through the chain of lakes and slaughter ducks.

A dance will be given at Gardner Hall on Friday evening, Sept. 20th, for the benefit of the base ball team. Tickets are 75 cents, and the public is invited to participate and help the club financially.

Martin Anderson, a butcher at Staples, was killed on Saturday. He was taking a steer to the slaughter house and the animal overturned a wagon in which was a loaded gun, the gun being discharged and the bullet striking the man in the temple, killing him instantly.

J. McCallum, formerly of this city, but who has been in business at Staples for some time, was here Tuesday for the purpose of closing up a deal whereby he becomes a partner in the tailoring business with A. Olson, on Sixth street. He will continue his Staples institution for the present.

Game Warden Paine brought A. T. Vie down from Lothrop on Wednesday charged with killing deer out of season, and on Thursday morning the prisoner plead guilty and was fined $50 and costs, amounting to $66.70. This man had been killing the deer and selling venison at Lothrop for some weeks.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church will be entertained next Wednesday by Mrs. T. J. Sharkey, assisted by Mrs. T. M. Edmunds and Mrs. E. O. Parks, at the residence of Mrs. Sharkey at the corner of Third and Kingwood streets. A musical will be given during supper or immediately after. The gentlemen are invited to be present.

A. T. Kimball, of Pelican creek, 24 miles north of Brainerd, informs us that his corn crop has been harvested, and is now in the shock. The corn is of the early row dent variety, and was planted on May 28th, showing conclusively that Crow Wing county is as good a corn county as one could wish. Mr. Kimball, during the past twelve years, has had but one corn crop injured by frost, and that year the frost came in August.

Dr. V. C. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, dean of the medical department of the University of Michigan, and professor of hygiene and bacteriology, one of the most eminent men in the country in his profession, arrived in the city this noon, and will remain here until to-morrow night, the guest of Dr. Courtney at the Sanitarium. The eminent gentleman is on his way to Helena, and stopped off to see Dr. Courtney, who studied medicine under him at Ann Arbor.

A very pleasant surprise party was given on Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Smith on Leech Lake, in honor of Fred Merritt, who is home from Yale College on a vacation. The party drove out and back with a four horse rig, and a very pleasant time is reported. Those present were: Miss Ella Robinson, Kate and Mary Whiteley, Lizzie Atkinson, Minnie Merritt and Maud Heustis, and Messrs. Hathaway, Young, Craig, Snyder, Merritt and H. White.

Work of track laying on the line of the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota railroad has been going on rapidly, as has also grading on the branches and extensions, says the Mississippi Valley Lumberman. About ten miles of spurs have been laid on the main line branch that runs east from Lothrop, and on the west side of the main line about fifteen miles of spurs have been built. The main line has been extended across the southwest arm of Leech Lake and about four miles beyond the crossing. The Minnesota Logging company has been working all summer hauling to the landing at Brainerd about 225 cars per day. They are nearing the end of their work now as the supply of logs is about exhausted. Logging for the winter will begin about the middle of next month.

Deaths.

John Benson, an employe of the Minnesota Logging Co., died at the Sanatarium on Sunday of typhoid fever, aged 40 years.

An infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ami Gould died on Sunday of cholera infantum. Mr. Gould lives 26 miles north of the city on the Pine river road.

Iver Arnstedt, of Daggett Brook, aged 69 years, died of cancer, on Monday, Sept. 9th, the funeral occurring on the 11th. Deceased was the father of Mrs. Henry Mahle, of this city.

Miss Helen Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Larson, who lives six miles east of town on the Mille Lacs road, died of cramps on Friday, Sept. 6th, aged six years. Her remains were interred on Sunday, the 8th, the funeral services being conducted at the house.

Mrs. Amanda Richardson, wife of C. M. Richardson, died at her home in this city on Wednesday, Sept. 11th, of Bright's disease, at the age of 69 years. The funeral service will be held to-day from the Methodist church, of which she was a member, Rev. R. C. Ogle officiating. The deceased was the mother of F. E. and Cass Richardson, and was a lady respected by all who knew her.

Emilie Priem, aged 24 years, died on Tuesday morning of spasms, at the home of Adolph Moody, her brother-in-law, who lives ten miles from Brainerd above Long Lake. She has a claim adjoining Mr. Moody's, where she lived alone. On Monday she came to Moody's place, declaring herself sick. She was afforded such relief as Mr. Moody and his wife could give, but died early Tuesday morning before a physician could be secured. She worked for some time as a domestic in this city.

Geo. D. LaBar returned on Wednesday from his trip to Boston, where he attended the national conclave of Knights Templar. He reports having had a most delightful trip throughout. While in Boston he had the pleasure of being present on board the U. S. Cruiser Minneapolis, when the committee from the Flour City presented the officers of that noble vessel the present from the city, viz: a magnificent solid silver dinner service and an elegant solid mahogany piano. He had an opportunity to visit all parts of the ship, and ventures the opinion that she's "out of sight."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Crow Wing Co. at the State Fair.

The Minneapolis Journal of Wednesday, in its report of the agricultural exhibit at the state fair, says:

But by all odds the most interesting part of the agricultural display and perhaps the most significant for the state of Minnesota is the remarkable showing made by the northern counties lying in the "pine belt." It was not so long ago that the average Minnesota man would say that the counties which grew pine trees were not worth anything for any other purpose under the sun, and that after the pine was cut off the land might as well be abandoned. In fact, many a man will tell you that yarn today. But here come the counties of Itasca, Mille Lacs, Crow Wing, Aitkin, and even far Itasca with tremendous displays of every conceivable vegetable, luscious fruits, wheat and corn in perfection, watermelons and late fruits, from orchards and the garden. " " "

Crow Wing county is still farther north, but its people display a very creditable lot of vegetables, fully equal in quality to the more southern counties. Apples of fine appearance, as well as well-ripened tomatoes and beautiful flowers, show that the county is decidedly "in it" as far as soil and climate are concerned.

The Pioneer Press says:

Of Crow Wing it was said yesterday by one of the men in charge that they could raise "any old thing." The exhibit is proof to the statement. They have raised "any old thing" that will come out of the earth, and they have displayed what they raised in a manner that shows the people of that county capable of selling "any old thing" after it is raised. The exhibit of fruits and vegetables is superb, and very strong in small fruits. G. A. Hunt, Mrs. Thoviot and John Cass have charge of the exhibit.

We have some Misses' and Children's Shoes that are solid goods, but old styles, which we offer at one-half price.

A Fine Entertainment.

One of the best and most pleasing musical and literary entertainments ever witnessed in this city was given at the Congregational church Wednesday evening before a large and enthusiastic audience. The program was published in these columns last week and people were expecting something fine and they were not disappointed. The first number was a piano solo by Miss Nellie Burns, which was heartily applauded. Next, "Good Bye Old Cabin Home," a solo, duet and chorus, was rendered by a collection of Brainerd's best artists, consisting of Misses Tootsie Wilkes and Lillian Fox, and Messrs. Webb, McKay and Georgeson, in a manner that would recommend them as colored minstrel artists. "Peace Be To This Dwelling," a duet, was rendered by Mrs. Edwards and Mabelle Davis, in a manner that captured the hearts of the audience. Pref. Flores next favored the audience with a guitar solo, after which Miss Maude Davis sang "Caller Herrin'" so sweetly and gracefully that the audience refused to be satisfied until she re-appeared. The next number was a recitation by Miss Jennie Paine, entitled "Bruce's Rose." Miss Paine is an elocutionist of considerable merit, and her efforts on this occasion merited the hearty applause she received. A duet, "David and Goliah," by Mrs. Chas. Hazen and D. O. Webb, was next on the program, and delighted all present. Mrs. Hazen has a very pleasing voice, which, with her graceful manner, never fails to please. "Hurrah for the Great Northwest," a solo by Messrs. Gardiner and Alderman, came next, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The flute solo, by Mr. Simmons, chief clerk of the B. & N. M., was one of the most enjoyable numbers of the evening. Mr. Simmons seems to be complete master of the flute, and the sweet strains produced carried away the audience, and the applause was continued for some time in the hope of recalling him, but he failed to reappear. Miss Nellie Nelson then favored the audience with a recitation, entitled "Mollie." Miss Nelson possesses great dramatic ability and she appeared at her best on this occasion, much to the delight of the large audience as indicated by the generous applause. The solo by Mabelle Davis accompanied by Mr. Simmons on the flute was the feature of the evening, Miss Davis' splendid soprano voice and the soft clear tones of the flute blending beautifully and producing a harmony that delighted the listening audience. The selection selected until they had been recalled. The colored artists appeared next in Camp Meeting Hymns, and were given an encore. "The Story Ever Sweet and True," a solo by Judge Alderman next delighted the audience, and was rendered as only the Judge can. "Friendship, Love and Song," a quartette by Mrs. and Miss Edwards and Messrs. Webb and Cass, was one of the most delightful numbers of the evening. "Our Flag Without a Stain" was rendered by Messrs. Alderman Webb, Gardiner and Georgeson, after which America was sung by the entire audience, which concluded a most delightful evening's entertainment.

The concert was a splendid success both from a financial and musical standpoint, and it was almost entirely due to the push and energy of Mrs. Walter Davis, who had the entire matter in charge. As Mrs. Davis is not a member of the Ladies' Aid, for whose benefit the concert was given, the ladies of that organization naturally feel very grateful for her untiring services in their behalf.

They Were Big Ones.

We are prepared to believe any story regarding big hail stones since the storm on Wednesday morning. Tuesday was one of the warmest days of the season, the thermometer registering 100 in the shade, and the oppressive heat lingered far into the night, something unusual for this climate, and knowing ones predicted that it was a storm breeder, and they were right. About 5 o'clock Wednesday morning the clouds presented a very threatening aspect and at 6 o'clock the storm broke in all its fury preceded by a hail storm that beggars description. Hail stones fell that measured 12 inches around, although the majority of them were about the size and shape of an ordinary door-knob. Very fortunately there was no wind and the damage done was much less than it would have been. Skylights in all parts of the city were riddled, and considerable damage was done to glass in houses by the hail bounding from the roofs of adjoining buildings. The green houses of Wm. Shonlell were greatly damaged, that gentleman stating his loss would be in the neighborhood of $300. Limbs were cut from trees fully two inches in diameter and many birds were killed. In East Brainerd a calf was killed and a horse that had been tied to a load of hay all night on the market was knocked down by the stones. The storm lasted about ten minutes.

"The Fast Mail."

A production of unusual magnitude will be given at the Sleeper opera house on tomorrow (Saturday) evening, Lincoln J. Carter's superb scenic melodrama, "The Fast Mail." As its name indicates, it deals largely with the railroad in its incidents, but it presents an abundance of effects that are daring in their magnitude and admirable in their execution. The steam boat is said to be a wonder of clever conception and masterly mechanical work, and the railroad scene, with its trains going at a terrific rate of speed, makes the stage seem like a piece of reality. The Niagara Falls scene is equally wonderfully beautiful, and it may safely be said is more elaborate than anything of the kind ever before attempted in this city. There are a multitude of minor effects that contribute to make the performance a creation of realism. The whistles, bells, and splashing are heard as the boat leaves the wharf. The sounds that tell us of an approaching train herald the approach of the freight and fast mail trains—the latter rushing by with people gazing from the window at the heroine who has just saved her lover's life by fastening a letter to the mail pouch. The roaring of Niagara Falls is heard, and the mist that rises from it is shown vividly. The play is under the personal direction of L. J. Carter, the author. The cast is said to be a capable one. The playing is startling at times and worthy of its climaxes, and these, when presented with all the effects of the intricate stage settings, bring the interest to a degree that is rarely attained even in the melodrama. A large number of people are employed in the production, which is in many particulars plainly the result of care and skill combined. Seats are now on sale at the McFadden Drug Co.'s store, at regular prices.
