Secret Fortune

BY HERBY HERMAN.

CHAPTER I—(Continued.)
The student of female nature would find much to ponder about Mrs. Zerk's alacrity in her last assertion. Her conduct was so different from that of the daughters of the hoodlums, who are so apt to be misled by the suggestions of a handsome man, that she does not care for a bit of the frailty which she had just confessed. Her mind was clear, and she was not so much affected by the charms of the young man who had just made her acquaintance.

CHAPTER II.
If there were ever a man who possessed a worthy and sturdy character, it was the man who had just made her acquaintance. He was a man of simple, unassuming habits, and he was not so much affected by the charms of the young man who had just made her acquaintance. He was a man of simple, unassuming habits, and he was not so much affected by the charms of the young man who had just made her acquaintance.

HER FAVORITE SON.

SEANAR C. BATTIS OF MINNESOTA, A PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITY.

The Western States Almost Unanimously favor Seanar C. Battis, a Great Many Men—Something of Seanar C. Battis' Record.

The increasing grip with which the name of Seanar C. Battis is being felt in the Western States is a fact that is attracting attention all over the country. It is not long since that his name was a household word in the West, and it is not long since that his name was a household word in the West.

Caveat Teeth.
