COne more month of Democratic times. Then we can reasonably expect something will be done to relieve the country.

THE Nevada legislature has passed a bill legalizing prize fighting. But then what could you expect from a state that was solid for the great free silver swindle.

THE strongest cabinet for years will be that of McKinley. Sherman, as secretary of state, Gage, as treasurer, and Alger, as secretary of war, make a combination that can't be beat.

THE great McEwen has not hypnotized Editor Stivers of the Journal. The free silver barons did that nearly a year ago, and he has not fully recovered yet, although the elections nearly broke the spell.

GOV. TURNEY of Tennessee, granted 630 pardons during his term of two years. That is to say, he did more for his party than any other Democratic Governor, with the exception of Altgeld, says the St. Louis Democrat.

THE Journal says the Tribune editor is densely ignorant of the money question, and the Tribune says the Journal editor is a demagogue and a calamity howler, and the general public is inclined to believe both are right.

THE Journal did not publish the number of business failures the past week as it showed a large falling off as compared with the previous week and the same week in previous years. That would not suit its purpose to create business unrest.

Cloth Gowns.

Nothing exceeds in popularity, this season, for the usefully smart gowns that are not too elaborate for the street yet are sufficiently handsome for afternoon social functions, the whole family of plain cloth,—broadcloth, facedcloth with a satiny lustre, and silky-haired zibelines. All rich dark shades are popular in these cloths, but especially choice are dark plum and heliotrope, a rich hunter's-green, and golden-brown. Among the blues a very trying, intensely bright shade, having a purplish cast, is occasionally seen, but it should be avoided as a snare by all but very young woman. It is so dominating a color that in most cases it eclipses its wearer and causes her to look colorless and sallow.—From "Review of Fashions," in Demorest's Magazine for February.

Jack Pine Minstrels.

The Jack Pine Minstrels are making very satisfactory progress with their rehearsals and the boys feel confident that they will give a better show than before. The strong chorus of last season has been strengthened by the addition of several good voices, and chorus singing will as before be a great feature of the entertainment. The music is new and up-to-date, and includes many of the most popular songs of the day. There will be a number of new specialties this year. The entertainment throughout will be clean and wholesome, refined and artistic, and everyone will thoroughly enjoy it. It is understood that arrangements will be made for an excursion from Staples on the second evening of the entertainment.

Meeting of Board of Education.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of education was held on Monday evening, all members being present except Mr. Cullen.

A communication from Earl Mallory asking for an increase of salary was referred to a committee on teachers.

John W. Roberts notified the board that he had transferred his wood contract to Koop Bros., and L. Laflam his to Abbot & Wilkins. Both transfers were accepted.

The secretary was instructed to draw an order for $114.05 in favor of Washington State Co. for release of judgment and settlement of suit.

The salary of Jennie Mix was fixed at $42.50.

The sum of $90 was advanced to Abbot & Wilkins on wood contract.

Prof. Wilson was granted the use of a room in the Washington building on Saturday, Feb. 20th, for the purpose of holding a meeting of the teachers of the county; also the use of a room in the old 4th street building the first week in March for examination, also the use of the high school room on the afternoon of March 26th, and the forenoon of March 27th, and that the city schools be dismissed the afternoon of March 26th, to give teachers an opportunity to attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Educational Association, which is to be held in Brainerd on March 26th and 27th, 1897.

Mr. Wm. Dodd was elected to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the death of Mr. H. Hagberg.

The finance committee was authorized to make the necessary loan to cover pay roll and monthly bills.

The matter of having fire drill was left with the superintendent.

Telephones were ordered placed in the city schools at $1.50 per month each.

The secretary was instructed to correspond with Fuller & Warren in regard to putting in dry closets in the Washington building.

On motion the president appointed Messrs. Pennell, Keene and Hurley to draw up resolutions of condolence upon the death of M. Hagberg. Board adjourned.

TRESPASSERS ON STATE LANDS.

BEWARE!

NOTICE is hereby given that any person or persons who cuts, removes or carries away any timber, standing or down, from any lands belonging to or under the control of the State of Minnesota, without first having obtained a legal permit from the STATE LAND COMMISSIONER, shall be deemed guilty, of willful trespass, and on conviction thereof subject to heavy fines and penalties.

"Whoever cuts or removes, or employs or induces any other person, firm or corporation to cut or remove any timber or other property from State lands, contrary to the provisions of this act (namely, a legal permit, or contrary to the provisions of such permit) or without conformity in each and every respect thereto, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand (1,000) dollars, or by imprisonment in the State Prison not exceeding two (2) years, or by both, in case the trespass is adjudged to have been willful."

In addition to the criminal proceedings, the State Land Commissioner is required to collect treble damages (treble stumpage value for all such timber cut or carried away; or, he may confiscate the same wherever found, and sell the same for the benefit of the State.

No hardwood timber belonging to the State can be sold separate from the land. By hardwood is meant all varieties of timber outside of pine, spruce, cedar and tamarac.

All railroad companies, merchants and dealers in logs, manufactured lumber, railroad ties, cord wood, posts and piling, should exercise due care in dealing with customers, so as to protect themselves against any loss on account of timber illegally removed from State lands.

Depredations on State lands will be stopped at any cost. No leniency will be shown any trespasses. The provisions of the stringent land law of 1895 will be rigidly enforced.

Dated St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1, 1897.

S. G. DUNN,
Commissioner.

Notice of Mortgage Sale.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage, executed and delivered by Jane Brockway and W. S. Brockway, her husband, mortgagors, to The Brainerd Loan and Building Association, mortgagee, dated the 1st day of June, A. D. 1892, and recorded in the Register of Deeds of Crow Wing County, Minnesota, on September 26th, 1892, at 9:10 o'clock A. M. in Book I of mortgages, on page 191, and whereas the undersigned was duly appointed by order of the district court, dated December 2nd, 1896, appointed receiver of said mortgage under the statute of Minnesota in such cases made and provided to foreclose the same by advertisement, and whereas notice on the first publication thereof was duly given on the 2nd day of January, A. D. 1897, and whereas the amount due and payable on said mortgage, and costs and expenses of sale, is $1,000 and $100 attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage, a suit or proceeding has not been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that under a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises by the Sheriff of said Crow Wing County, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Brainerd, Crow Wing County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of March, A. D. 1897, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day, subject to redemption at the expiration of one year from said day of sale, as provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and to be sold, are situated in Crow Wing County, Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section number four (4), in township number one hundred and forty-five (145) north of range number twenty-eight (28) west of the fourth principal meridian, according to the government survey, containing forty (40) acres, more or less.

Dated January 2nd, 1897.

JOHN W. ROBERTS,
Receiver of Mortgagee.

LEON E. LUM,
Attorney.

Dated January 2, 1897.

District Court, 10th Judicial District.
First National Bank of Brainerd, Plaintiff.
Charles F. Kindred and Sara E. Kindred,
Defendants.

You, and each of you, are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint in this action, which has been filed with the Clerk of said Court, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Brainerd, in said County, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of said service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will have herein applied to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Notice of Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage containing a power of sale, executed and delivered by Ole Lee, mortgagor, to Ole Lee, Jr., mortgagee, dated the 20th day of October, 1892, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Crow Wing County, Minnesota, on the 6th day of November, 1892, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book K of Mortgages, on Page 346; and there is claimed to be due, and is due and unpaid at the date of this notice, the sum of Eight Hundred and Seventy-Seven Dollars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale, and of the statutes of Minnesota, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises therein described, lying and being in Crow Wing County, Minnesota, to-wit:

The southeast quarter of the northwest quarter, and the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, and the west half of the southwest quarter, all in Section Seventy-Eight, and the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter, in Section Thirty-Two, all in Township Forty-Seven (47) North of Range Twenty-Eight (28) West of the Fourth Principal Meridian, will be sold by the Sheriff of said Crow Wing County, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Brainerd, in said County and State, on Saturday, the 20th day of February, 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy said mortgage and interest and costs and disbursements of foreclosure, including Sheriff's fees.

A man who saves his words, usually saves his money.

A preacher, like a musician, should play without notes.

Do not blame servants who have a master that is not up to the standard.

If you consent to the naming of an empire do not grumble when he decides.

It is a pity that a more distinct line cannot be drawn between community and individual rights.

Criticism acts on a man like a mustard plaster: If any is given you, hug it tight until it does you good.

Every one is the object of somebody's suspicion, and should regulate his conduct with that thought in mind.

A poultry show in Kansas City claims to have the costliest fowls in the world. But no one can make Bob Fitzsimmons believe it.

Ninety-two percent of all the families in Great Britain own property of a less value than $5,000. The other 8 per cent practically own all.

An Indianapolis highwayman tried to rob a St. Louis lawyer on a dark back street the other night, and now the lawyer is wearing a new gold watch.

Never urge a young lady to play for you on the piano after she has told you that she can't play without her notes—Even if she can you won't miss much, usually.

There is no such thing as a natural distribution of wealth among mankind. Men dist ibute it to themselves according to the dictates of their own shrewdness, good luck, greed, industry, honesty or dishonesty.

The man find it hard to be satisfactory. Chesley Hamble, of Holton, was killed because he refused to marry; Jacob Holton, of Hamble, was killed because he wanted to marry. This all happened in Pennsylvania.

Because a man is eminent in national politics, does that imply that the public is well-bred when it demands from the newspapers an account of his daughter's gowns or her love affairs? If another man offers to the public his best thought, hoping earnestly to make some struggling soul in life, and his work commands universal attention and respect, why should his children, his accent, his family, be dragged into public view to gratify a million curious eyes?

A good wagon, run by a gasoline engine, is the newest device for spreading the gospel in New York city. It will be in the large of two Baptist clergymen and their wives, and will patrol every portion of the city. The vehicle will contain a regular altar, on which will be preach, the clergymen will distribute coffee and tracts to those around the wagon.

A peculiar state of affairs exists in Dorchester county, Maryland, that in essence is free public schools. One of the main sources of school revenue for many years has been from the sale of dog licenses. A recent change in the law requires one-third of this revenue to be paid into the state treasury and is thereby diminishing the school fund to the tune of about $4,000 a year. The salaries of country teachers now range from $276 to $276 per year, the latter being for the best qualified teachers in charge of the largest and most advanced schools. The question of increased school revenues will be a potent factor in Maryland politics during the coming year.

A novel charity has been organized by Lazarus Morgenthau, an unostentatious philanthropist of New York. Its purpose is to provide dowries to worthy German orphan girls who marry worthy men. At present its fund is large enough to furnish every year sixteen dowries of one hundred dollars each, but the founder expects that within a few years the society will have a fund of only million dollars, sufficient to make a wedding present to every deserved of the orphan, who may be married by any religious ceremony she desires, provided she is first joined to her husband by a public civil ceremony. The society's board of directors will be composed of one Jew and two Gentiles and one hundred Christians. Already six orthodox societies—one Protestant, two Roman Catholic and three Hebrew—have been asked to select suitable applicants for the society's wedding presents.

A Washington colored boy took a pair of old shoes, which he had just purchased, to the cobbler that owns the shop, and told to the chief that there was something wrong with them, he having noticed some shining substance on the heel of one of them, which he discovered accidentally in removing a piece of loose leather. The boy was advised to take the shoes to a shoemaker and have them examined. He did so, and the shoemaker found concealed in the heel a "railroad torpedo." The matter was again reported to the police and they are investigating it.

Right living is, in one sense, a living without making mistakes. To make mistakes is human, however, and a mistake may at least have in it the merit of effort. The person who does nothing may escape blundering, but a do-nothing policy is a policy of negation. "Recently," said a heir, "notable speaker at a memorable gathering lately assembled, "it was said people who made no mistakes for thousands of years; they were in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania, in the Egyptian and Mexican departments, in glass cases."

THE EARTH'S TEMPERATURE.

Some Observations Made in the Deepest Holes.

Physical geographer teaches that the increase of temperature as we descend into the earth is about one degree Fahrenheit for every sixty feet descent. The following deep mines of the world show exactly the amount of this increase in the most notable instances: Tarnowitz, Silesia, 1,968 feet, 1 degree in the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mines, in the Lake Superior district, 2,600 feet, 1 degree sunk to a depth of 4,200 feet. The greatest depth reached by Hirthes in the mines of Belgium, 3,937 feet; Austria-Hungary, 3,672 feet; Victoria, 3,307 feet. In the Calumet & Hecla mines the increase of temperature is the least on record, being one degree for each seventy-eight feet. Superior. On the other hand, the recent sinking of the Sutro tunnel has proved high, from the hole being heated by volcanic action and the presence of hot springs, the increase of heat as a result of observations of the Red Jacket shaft was one degree for each 27 feet per degree Fahrenheit. The deepest bore hole yet sunk was that put down by the Prussian government in 1893, and reached a depth of 6,572 feet, the increase of temperature in which was 52.1 feet. In the Comstock mine it is found that the increase of heat is comparatively small, being one degree for each 82.1 feet. In the Comstock mine it is also noticeable that the presence of a large body of water does not seem to be to work, due to the increased temperature, and ordinarily the case heat of the rock. Very often, sometimes as often as once in twenty minutes.

Eating Dinner Backward.

An odd experiment was made by kinetoscope took place not long ago in Boston. The subject was a man eating dinner, and the film was prepared especially for the occasion, was of unusual length, so that the whole performance could be recorded. The man entered the room, and, seating himself at a table, began eating his dinner. The motion of the fork from the plate to his lips were carefully recorded and the last morsel of food had vanished. Then he arose and walked out of the room, leaving nothing on the table but bare dishes. The series of pictures was then run backward, and the man entering the room, walking backward, his fat stuck on the table, upon which these were nothing but bare dishes, and proceeded to extract food from his lips until he had filled the potato dish with potatoes and gradually put together a steak and the platter before him. Then he calmly backed out of the room, and the waiter did likewise with the meat until the meat had apparently created.—Troy Times.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Grind of the Minnesota Law Factory.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—The first business in the senate was the swearing in of H. H. Dunn as senator from the Sixth district in place of Frank A. Day. President Gibbs announced that Senator Dunn would have all the usual committees to which Senator Day had been appointed.

After the senate had gone through with the regular order of business, five reports were made from the committee on enrolled bills, the governor's nominations were taken up and disposed of.

The following bills were introduced:

To provide state aid for rural schools.

To amend the laws of 1894 relating to county agricultural associations and state aid thereto, by appropriating $12,000 state aid for such.

To restrict the sale of intoxicating liquors in counties; local option law.

In the House.

The greater portion of the time in the house session was given over to the introduction of bills, twenty-one new measures being presented, and a number than ordinary importance, were proposed. Mr. Layman introduced a measure fixing the weight of a legal bushel of coal at eighty pounds. Mr. Brandrup introduced a bill allowing villages of a population exceeding 1,000 to vote upon the question of the dissolution of the village corporations and the organization of the same into one territory. Mr. Grondahl introduced a bill designing to give a board of county commissioners the right to open paths. It provides that upon the petition of not less than twenty persons, the county commissioners shall direct the county surveyor to view the premises in the desired route path, and his report and plat is made part of the county records. Mr. Hood introduced a bill providing any elector who resides twenty miles from the polling place in his election district may secure from the clerk of courts a certificate upon which upon presentation of this certificate he may be allowed to vote at the polling place nearest his residence in the same county. Mr. Bergley offered a bill increasing the fees of notaries public in criminal cases from $1 to $2 per day. Mr. Poeta proposed an amendment to the law relating to securing the number of voters who must sign petitions for the nomination of a candidate within a precinct of a municipal district, from 5 per cent of the vote in such district, with the further provision that the required number of signers in such cases shall not exceed 500.

Mr. Hood introduced an order of most important bills of the day, providing for a fire marshal for the state, and defining the duties of the office which incendiarism or carelessness as a cause of fires may be detected.

St. Paul, Jan. 29. — The Dunn-Day senatorial contest was called into action by the filing of the name of Senator Cole, who moved a reconsideration of a vote by which Frank A. Day was declared vacant. Senator Cole was elected with the majority in the senate, and it is understood that there was serious doubts in the minds of many of the GOP members as to the action of Day's seat, to date from Jan. 31, 1895, would have a right to hold over. Mr. Person land tax bill and other senate measures that became the order of the date. The bill referred during which it was shown that Senator Cole's motion to reconsider the vote of Day in the introduction of a resolution in which the date of the vacancy of Day's seat will be let open.

President Gibbs then ruled that no motion could be entertained that carried with it the question of H. H. Dunn's right to the seat, and further asserted that no such intention attached to the resolution. He stated that he would give ample time to consider the matter, however, the vote was tabled 34 to 27, on party lines.

Senator Wyman introduced a resolution favoring the Anglo-American treaty, which, after much debate, was passed.

Among the important bills introduced were the following:

To provide for the establishment of another normal school at Moorhead.

To regulate the fees of notaries.

To amend the penal code relating to larceny.

To appropriate $28,000 for the state fair.

To create a board of pardons and defining its duties; substitute for S. F. 76, introduced by Senator Kiefer.

In the House.

Mr. Fenstermacher's bill providing that all municipal elections in this state shall be held on the first Tuesday after February, March, April or May, of each odd-numbered year. By request Mr. Sanderson introduced a bill providing a constitutional amendment to allow women to vote on municipal questions. Mr. Feig introduced a bill appropriating $25,000 for the purchase of books for the librarian at the state agricultural college. Mr. Brudetten proposed an amendment to the law relating to the annual school meetings in common school districts. Mr. Hood proposed another bill requiring the inspection of cattle, sheep and swine before the same can be sold for human food. Mr. Donnelly offered a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to act as to the cost of printing the official state canvass and the manner of the same changed against candidates for office.

The calendar was taken up and three bills given their third reading and passed. The first was Mr. Hall's bill providing a constitutional amendment to allow women to vote on municipal questions. Mr. Feig introduced a bill appropriating $25,000 for the purchase of books for the librarian at the state agricultural college. Mr. Brudetten proposed an amendment to the law relating to the annual school meetings in common school districts. Mr. Hood proposed another bill requiring the inspection of cattle, sheep and swine before the same can be sold for human food. Mr. Donnelly offered a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to act as to the cost of printing the official state canvass and the manner of the same changed against candidates for office.

The calendar was taken up and three bills given their third reading and passed. The first was Mr. Hall's bill providing a constitutional amendment to allow women to vote on municipal questions. Mr. Heimerlinger called up his resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to prepare a bill reducing state, county and legislative salaries, the former amounting 20 per cent as about the proper average reduction. The resolution was amended by making it 10 per cent 20 per cent limitation and all reference as to the salary of state officers, and after considerable discussion the resolution was adopted as amended.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The senate put in very busy day. Besides the usual routine orders, taken up for the first time and passed, the senate confirmed the judiciary and other committees, any number of new bills introduced, and the senate and house had their hands full and an all-day session was the result. Several bills were introduced of general and most important, just at present, was that of Senator Kiefer, which was a lengthy debate in committee of the whole which is the committee of the whole at the head of general orders. While pursuing its devious course through the committee of the whole, Senator Kiefer moved to amend the laws relating to the organization of corporations, so as to make it conform to congress relating to the classification of railway mail clerks.

To legalize the issuance of bonds for all city and village purposes.

The following bills were introduced:

To provide for assistance in the office of the secretary of state.

To prohibit the desecration of Decoration day.

To provide compensation for county surveyors.

To reorganize the faculty of the state agricultural school and university.

To amend the law relating to assessment relative to the taxation of railroads.

To regulate the election of delegates to political conventions.

To amend the law relating to the organization of corporations.

The house devoted most of two sessions to discussion of the state arbitration treaty, pending before the United States senate. It is to say, the discussion was based upon resolutions expressive of legislative opinion as to the treaty, but during the debate and a quarter of the debate in the forenoon, occupied by Mr. Donnelly it wandered very wide of the mark. During the afternoon session something was said about the treaty, and the final result of it all was that the adoption of the senate resolution, favoring arbitration in general, but carefully and explicitly refraining from an indorsement of the treaty, with an amendment offered by Mr. Douglas, expressive of opposition to the treaty unless the Monroe doctrine was specifically guarded.

Mr. Feig, from the committee on towns and counties, reported favorably the following bills, and recommended the same to be passed: To require towns to maintain guide posts; to reenact section 1, chapter 176, Laws of 1895, relating to towns; to repeal chapter 208, Laws of 1895, for the enlargement of organized counties.

Mr. McDonald, from the committee on state affairs, reported the bills providing libraries favorably. Mr. Lindbergh reported several bills from the committee on public buildings and grounds, which was reported for indefinite postponement.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The senate calendar was literally cleaned out and ten bills were passed. Other useless measures now on the calendar, the senate is now in a fair way of acquitting itself commendably in the matter of the session's useful legislation. The senate concurred in the house amendments to Senator Wyman's Anglo-American treaty resolution.

A communication was received from the governor stating that he had withdrawn the appointment of Judge Webber to the state board of equalization.

Senator Potter introduced a bill to provide for the loaning of the permanent school and university funds of the state.

Senator Kantrud introduced a bill to repeal the law relating to bounties for the arrest of horse thieves.

The following bills were passed:

A bill relating to cemetery associations.

A bill for an act fixing the fees to be paid by applicants for certificates of declaration of intention to become citizens of the United States, and for certificates of full citizenship.

A bill to amend the powers of the district court; may issue writs of certiorari.

A bill for an act to prevent the furnishing of liquor to minors and prescribing punishment therefor.

The senate adjourned until 2 o'clock Monday at 2 p. m.

In the House.

The house spent the greater part of the day in committee of the whole considering bills, several of which were passed.

Mr. Harper's bill proposing a constitutional amendment to make the governor ineligible for the office of governor for the term succeeding that of most general discussion. The committee of the whole recommended the bill for passage by a decisive majority and the house indorsed the action.

Mr. Hall's bill providing for the appointment of a board of arbitration in case of strikes.

Adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Proceedings of the National Law Mill.

Washington, Jan. 28. — A crisis in the debate on the Nicaragua canal bill was reached in the senate. It brought out an emergency statement from Senator Sherman in which he foreshadowed a new treaty by which the United States would build the canal, without the intermediation of a private corporation. The senator declared that this governmental execution of the project was now readily feasible and that all private efforts in that direction had proved failures. Mr. Vilas followed with a speech in favor of the canal and bill to the committee on foreign relations. The motion was changed so as to make the recommittal to the special committee of which Mr. Morgan is chairman. The senate adjourned before a vote was taken and the Vilas motion to recommit is pending. The military academy appropriation bill carrying approximately $470,000, was passed after the defeat of the amendment for participation of the West Point cadets in the inauguration ceremony.

The house, after a debate of four hours, adopted the conference report on the immigration bill by a vote of 131 to 118. The principal criticism of the measure agreed on by the conferees to defeat was that based upon the extension of the educational test to female as well as male immigrants on the ground that it might divide families and to the limitation to the ability of an immigrant to read and write the English language or the language of their native country or residence.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The senate session of the senate was comparatively brief, as more than half the day was spent behind closed doors. During the open session the bill for an international monetary conference was debated. Mr. Chandler speaking in favor of it and Mr. Stewart of Nevada against. Mr. Chandler's speech was in the nature of a statement of the attitude of the republican side of the chamber on the bill. Mr. Stewart, although criticising the commission as futile, stated that he would not oppose the measure. The Nicaragua canal bill and the bankruptcy bill were before the senate for a brief time, but no progress was made in either of them. Mr. Allen's day is lively debate occurred over Mr. Allen's resolution questioning the president's right to foreclose against the Pacific railroads. The resolution went over for a week by Mr. Morrow of Utah, who broke so morrow.

The house passed the Indian appropriation bill and entered into the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill, but all interest in these two measures were overshadowed by a remarkable speech delivered by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio attacking ex-Gov. Altgeld of Illinois, and the action of Mr. Hoxworth of Missouri, heaping ridicule on Secretary Morton for the recent issue of a pamphlet entitled the "Farmers Interest in Finance." Among the pamphlets distributed by Secretary Mary A. Vliet, widow of Maj. W. H. Sanger, Fifty-fifth Illinois infantry, at the war of the rebellion.

A number of amendments to the immigration bill were reported to before it passed. The salaries and expenses of the civil commission were reduced from $50,000 to $43,000.

Washington, Jan. 30. By the decisive vote of 46 to 1 the senate passed the bill for the appointment of certain commissioners to an international monetary conference. The closing of the debate brought out several closing speeches. During the day Mr. Morgan failing to secure an agreement for a vote on the Nicaraguan canal bill—announced that it would be urged to conclusion Monday. The senate adjourned until Monday.

The house had another exciting and somewhat sensational episode. At the end of an acrimonious debate on the conference report on the bill to confer the rights and franchises of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad on the purchasers under the mortgage foreclosure, Mr. Bland of Vermont and Mr. Burrett of Massachusetts exchanged broadsides. The report was rejected by an overwhelming majority 71 to 1, and the conference were instructed to insist on the house amendments.

Just before adjournment Mr. Hardy, Rep., Ind., who was refused unanimous consent to continue a political speech he was making, declared that he would restitute by objecting to every request for unanimous consent for the remainder of the session.

The remainder of the day was spent in the discussion of the agricultural appropriation bill.

Washington, Feb. 1. — The senate committee on foreign relations was agreed to report favorably on the arbitration treaty with some amendments. One of these amendments are merely verbal. One of the two which are considered stricker out the clause providing for the selection of King Oscar of Sweden as umpire in cases referred ne-saury.

The other important amendment is an addition to article 1 of the treaty and reads as follows: "No question which affects the foreign or domestic policy of either of the contracting parties or the relations of either with any other state or power, by treaty or otherwise, shall be subject to arbitration without this treaty, except by special agreement." The amendment eliminating the usual clause was agreed to by a vote of 9 to 1. The vote in opposition is understood to have been cast by Senator Gray of Delaware. The vote on the motion to report the treaty favorably as amended was 6 to 4.

An amendment declaring in explicit terms that the Alaskan boundary question should not be included in the agreement for arbitration, was voted down as being unnecessary. The chairman was instructed to report to the senate to give the treaty consideration at an early a day as practicable. It is expected that when taken up it will lead to a protracted and animated discussion that will consume a week.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Nicaragua canal bill occupied the attention of the senate most of the day but no progress was made toward a vote. Mr. Morgan, in charge of the measure, declined to secure an agreement for a vote to-morrow or Thursday but the opponents of the measure, Mr. Gray of Delaware, Mr. Daniel, resisted any agreement. Shortly after the opening of the senate went into executive session. The arbitration treaty was presented with amendments and briefly discussed. The senate ratified the Japanese treaty with reference to trade marks.

When the open session was resumed a resolution by Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.) was agreed to, requesting the secretary of the interior to furnish information as to the progress of the survey in Alaska. Mr. Chandler (Rep., N. H.) offered a resolution directing the senate committee on privileges and elections to investigate into all the circumstances of the recent Delaware election. Another brief executive session was held and the senate adjourned.

The house had a busy day. An unusually large number of bills were passed but few of them were of any considerable importance. The pension day, and the usual obstructive tactics were unavailing. A bill, the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was taken up and fair progress made before the hour of adjournment.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The feature of the senate was a very spirited debate on the conference report on the immigration bill. Mr. Gibson of Maryland opposed the report and Mr. Lodge defended it. After two hours struggle the report was over and the Nicaragua canal bill was taken up. Mr. Vilas continuing his remarks. Mr. Teller of Colorado also entered into the debate in opposition to the measure. The bill was passed pending which the surviving members of Gray's battalion of Arkansas volunteers.

The day in the house was very dull, the whole day being devoted to debate on appropriation bills. The diplomatic and consular bill was passed and considerable progress made with the District of Columbia bill. The bill as passed carries $1,675,706. Resolutions arranging for the formal canvassing of the electoral vote of the last presidential election on Wednesday, Feb. 10, were adopted.

WILL FIGHT IN NEVADA.

Almost Certain That Corbett and Fitz Will Fight.

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—It is almost a foregone conclusion that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will take place in Nevada, and it is also quite certain that the ring will be pitched in Carson. Everything points to the verification of this dual proposition.

No opposition to the measure was manifested in this city, but the people of the east army of Nevadans who are favorable to the measure voice the opinion that it will go through without a struggle. The chief executive of the state has already declared his position as an opinion as to how the matter stripes him.

LUXURIES FOR DOGS.

WHERE THEY ARE PETTED, NURSED AND CARED FOR.

Hospital and Sanitarium Combined—A Washington Doctor Who Gives the Beasts Baths and Performs Operations on Them.

SITUATED between Pierce's Mill road and Zoological park, upon the high bank which overlooks Rock creek, is the new canine infirmary recently opened by Dr. Cecil French, professor of canine medicine in the veterinary department of Columbia university, says the Washington Post. This institution is a novel one and is an experiment in this section of the country. It is a combination boarding, hospital and home for ill dogs, fortunate enough to have friends who can afford to indulge them in this luxury.

The building is one story high, forty feet long and twenty feet wide. Through the center of it is a corridor extending the length of the building and opening on this corridor are twelve cozy rooms, five on each side and two at the north end. Each of these small rooms is fitted up in hardwood and is heated by hot-water pipes so adjusted that the heat may be shut off from one and admitted to others as desired. The rooms have a large window and a door opening to the "run" or playground in the rear, later over the door opening on the corridor.

These rooms are divided into wards for the occupancy of dogs having contagious diseases, such as mange and distemper; for invalid dogs having ailments that are not contagious, including accidents, and for boarders, which are genuinely pets left there while the owner is out of the city. The arrangement of the wards is such that the animals suffering from contagious diseases are completely isolated from their canine brethren.

At the south end of the corridor the operating room is on one side and the dispensary on the other. This operating room is supplied with hot and cold water, a zinc-covered operating table so arranged that all blood and water is conveyed from it to the sewer by pipes. In this room Dr. French performs all of his surgical treatment, from the amputation of a leg to enterotomy. He recently had a notable case of the latter class.

The patient purchased was owned by Miss Dorothy Rockhill, daughter of the assistant secretary of state, recently deceased. The animal was a pet spaniel that he had picked up along the street. His suffering became intense and it was feared that the animal would have to be shot. Miss Rockhill was greatly attached to the little pet, which, because of his shabbiness of nature, was called "Sin," and before consenting to his being killed she consulted Dr. French. The animal was taken to the infirmary and the difficult operation of enterotomy was successfully performed and now "Sin" is as lively in the house of the assistant secretary of state as ever.

Pet dogs suffer much from toothache and the extraction of the offending teeth is a daily occurrence at the infirmary. A few days ago a well-known society lady took her little pet King Charles spaniel to the infirmary for treatment. The dog was blanketed and carried in her arms as she left her carriage and walked to the building. The owner appeared to be greatly distressed over the suffering of the dog and she begged Dr. French to cure it. The examination showed that the animal had toothache and when informed that the offending tooth could easily be extracted the society lady cried:

"Oh, no, doctor, not for the world. He would be a sight with a front tooth gone. Can't you save it?"

Dr. French had never filled a tooth and is not a dentist, but he knew how the work should be done and so he replied:

"Certainly, madam; leave the spaniel with me for three days and I will have him all right."

The society lady departed in her carriage and Dr. French an hour later was in the office of a dentist. After a consultation the doctor returned to the infirmary and the dentist accompanied him. The animal was placed on the operating table, and under the influence of an anesthetic, and while Dr. French watched the pulse the dentist filled the offending tooth. In an hour had placed a gold filling in the tooth, a filling which glistened in the sunlight when the dog left the infirmary and which, in the words of the dentist, was a little rough treatment. It soon attracted the attention of the Jack Tars, three of whom had settled round, scrutinizing it with keen interest. By the order of an officer they soon dispersed, but a second afterward another bluff seaman was discovered secretly watching it with wondering eyes. He was asked his reason for standing thus idle.

"Well, yer know," said Jack, "I'm that waiting for to see the hinsects in the bloke's arm that can play that there fiddle!"

Mysteries of Helium.

As further experiments are carried with the new gas called helium—discovered by Ramsay—the difficulty force it had been found on the earth—the more remarkable it appears. Many chemists believe it contains all the gases, yet they have not been able satisfactorily to divide it. Professor Ramsay, one of the discoverers, has failed in every attempt to make it enter into a chemical combination; Lord Rayleigh has found that it passes freely by far the lowest refractivity ever observed in any gas, and surprise is expressed at the astonishing distance traversed by electric sparks in darting through helium.

"All right, dear; and if you should get your—er—your boots blacked without your knowing it, don't be long in finding me."

The bootblacking operation occupied a couple of minutes, observes the New York World, and the husband plunged through the constantly swinging doors of the store into the arms of a floorwalker.

"What can we do for you this morning, sir?"

"I want to find my wife."

The floor-walker looked puzzled.

"Oh, yes, sir; possible to a second floor, cross the main hall, through the shoe department, then up one short flight into the annex."

It took him ten minutes to get there and when he did his wife was gone. He was directed to turn to the waiting-room, the lost property room, the information bureau, and, finally, after more than half an hour's search, he found her in the restaurant with a cup of chocolate and an evening newspaper.

"Oh, there you are, dear. My time it took you to get your shine! Now, before we go to the steamship office, I want to go for a minute to the book department——"

"You'll come with me this very minute," he said, "or you can just may swim to England for all I care."

She went.

THE CARRIER PIGEON.

An Explorer's Wife Cheered by the Message Tied It Brought.

One day a wonderful bird tapped at the window of Mrs. Nansen's house at Christiania. Instantly the window was opened and the wife of the famous Arctic explorer in another moment covered the little messenger with kisses and caresses, says the Philadelphia Times. The carrier pigeon had been away from the cottage thirty long months, but it had not forgotten the way home. It brought a note from Nansen stating that all was going on well with him and the expedition in the polar regions. Nansen had fastened a message to a carrier pigeon and turned the bird loose. The frail courier darted out into the blizzardly air. It flew like an arrow over a thousand miles of snow waste and then sped forward over another thousand miles of ocean and plains and forests, and one morning entered the window of the waiting mistress and delivered the message which she had been awaiting for three years. Love, hope, human pluck, sagacity and endurance, but the little carrier pigeon, in its home-coming, had in the absence of thirty months, accomplished a feat so wonderful that we can only give ourselves up to it in admiration and astonishment which must overwhelm every one when the marvelous story is told. Mrs. Nansen's pigeon is one of the wonders of the world.

The Mexican Army.

The Mexican army is mainly composed of recruits forced into its ranks from the prisons. Every prisoner released from confinement on condition that he enlists in the army; thus the cost of feeding him is saved to the treasury of the state is avoided, and frequently a man is sentenced to enlistment without being sent to jail, with the same economical end in view. This method of recruiting the army prevails to a greater or less extent all through Mexico and is more particularly the rule in the province of Sonora, where not infrequently a whole regiment, barring the non-commissioned and commissioned officers, is composed of criminals. With a regiment so recruited it is not surprising that there are many desertions, and that esprit de corps is entirely lacking.

TURNS HIM OVER.

Machine That Shifts an Old Man in His Bed.

The San Francisco Examiner tells about a man who has invented an apparatus to turn him over in bed. The man is Walter Hyde. He lives in Alameda, Cal. Mr. Hyde is quite old and is troubled with an incomplete circulation of the blood, causing sleeplessness. If he remains in one position long a numbness of paralysis ensues and he cannot sleep at all. Mr. Hyde concluded that if he had some mechanical means of turning himself over in bed at night he could go to sleep and not be under the necessity of awakening. Being somewhat of a mechanical turn of mind, Mr. Hyde concluded to experiment. The result of his tinkering and thinking is a bed. The frame is kept in position by being secured at the sides to a clock-like apparatus with cogs and wheels and the motive power being governed by the clock and spring apparatus. The lifting of the mattress is so nicely graduated that the sleeper is unconscious of the change but continues undisturbed in his slumbers. Even as the mechanism attached to the frame automatically changes his position during the night on the right or the left side as the case may be.

BADLY FRIGHTENED.

The Stranger Was Not a Dish Turpin—Just What Was He?

Had I been a woman I would have screamed at the ten of my voice. But being only a man I merely gave a little jump that swelled up in my throat and treated myself to an imitation of a bravery, says the Detroit Free Journal. Just as I had entered the shade that hangs like a pall about the church on Bates street I felt a figure loomed up before me indistinctly silhouetted against the gray stones of the edifice. It was a man. He quickly withdrew a hand from his coat pocket and, pointing his index finger straight at me, made a sharp hissing noise. "Stand a moment."

I could see no gleam in his eye, but I imagined that there was a thought of the barrel of a revolver and I thought I saw that gleam. I stood. I confess that my knees smacked together and a cold perspiration began to ooze out of my anatomy.

"Say," he said, after eyeing me for a moment, "you needn't be afraid of me."

But I was. I thought he had evil designs on me. The fact that I was in a place suggested a repetition of several things that Dick Turpin made a business of. I was in a highly nervous frame at the moment, chiefly because I was trying to masticate the lump in my throat and get it to go down.

"Say," he repeated, "you needn't be afraid of me. I'm no thug. All I wanted to ask you is if Lola is the Grand Circus or Belle Isle."

TOP OF MONT BLANC.

An Observatory Is Now Being Built There.

The Philadelphia Times has been interesting reports in respect of observatories on mountain tops, and in a recent issue printed a long story from its Paris correspondent, telling of an observatory now being built on the apex of Mount Blanc by M. Janssen, says the New York World. The Times prints a picture showing how the material for the structure was carried up the precipitous mountain side by guides, each of whom was able to convey about fifty pounds at a trip. Some years ago another observatory was founded—indeed an observatory on a rock within about 1,400 feet of the top. M. Vallot had tried to get permission to build, but could find no suitable location for the structure. Ice and snow do not offer a foundation for the construction of a house, especially when it will be subjected to the heavy winds that obtrude themselves at such altitudes. Among the following figures showing the altitudes at which observatories have been established: Pic du Midi, Pyrenees, Peru, 16,650 feet high; Janssen's Mont Blanc, France, 15,776 feet high; Pike's peak, Colorado, 14,147 feet high; Quito, Ecuador, 9,540 feet high; Vallot's, Mont Blanc, France, 14,320.

Walt Whitman the Man.

In a recently published book, entitled "Walt Whitman, the Man," Mr. Thomas Donaldson deals almost entirely with the personality of the Good Gray Poet, and completely shatters the belief held by many that he was a kind of literary outlaw, reeking with the atmosphere of the beer cellar, feeding on the adulation of the ignorant and trying to accept their charity on all occasions. Says his biographer: "I knew him when he was in public is being more and more drawn to this institution, which is putting hundreds of workers into the mansion fitted up for all other countries. An endowment fund of $100,000 is now greatly needed.

NATURE AND SCIENCE.

The muscles of the mocking bird's larynx are larger in proportion to the size of the bird than those of any other creature.

Recent experiments at the Boston University Medical school show that the X-ray will produce sensation on the cells of nerves both when applied directly, and without mediation of the nerve filaments, or in other words that the nerve cells are subject to the rays in mental perception.

Dr. Jagadis Chunder Bose, professor of physics at the Union college, claims a discovery more wonderful than the X-ray, and by which it is possible to make electric signals through mountains, and ring bells and fire guns many thousand feet away without the use of wires. By means of this new ray will do away with dangers caused by fogs, as it will penetrate the thickest fog—in fact, there is nothing it cannot pierce.

In so dry a region as Central Australia rain is expected in fair numbers, creeks and claypans "swarming" with them. As the waters dry up the frogs disappear to their burrows, remaining till the rains come again. "Certain species of them," says Spencer, "gorge themselves with water, and then bury into their retreats, and in times of drought the natives dig them out and squeeze the water from their bodies to satisfy their thirst.

The whole subject of the methods by which seeds are distributed is attracting considerable attention just now. It seems almost impossible to consider any general law by which to explain the reason for things in nature. It does seem, for instance, safe to say that wings are given to seeds to enable them to fly far away from the parent tree, and thus extend the area of territory occupied by the species. But in many of the large-seeded pines—the Indian and others—the large seeds easily are the ones thrown away. The solid, perfect seeds remain around the parent tree. The objectors to everything argue that wings are given to fan out light, useless material. But this surely cannot always be.

PURIFYING DRINKING WATER.

Stating It Away the Best Way of Filtering.

It is well known that alum will remove organic and other matters from water so as to render it clear and pure; but it is now said that fluoride is superior to alum for this purpose, says Meehan's Monthly. One ounce of fluoride is used to every 1,000 gallons of water. After all, the best kind of purifier is nature's own. The minute organisms known as bacteria are the popular bugaboos of every book making water. These invisible creatures have to live as well as their larger neighbors, and they must eat to live. As soon as they have eaten all in the water that there is to feed on they die. Dr. Frankland has recently stated, from his recent examination of water stored for two weeks, that it seems as pure and free from bacteria as it is if it had passed through the best of filters, but it seems strange that this should have so recently come under Dr. Frankland's experience. Everyone knows that there is no purer or better water to be found than rain, which is supplied to seafaring people. Almost any kind of water stored away in a ship's tank improves greatly and pure after the vessel has been a few weeks at sea. This is usually ascribed to people not consuming some water but there is really nothing to ferment: It is simply that the bacteria have eaten everything in the water there is to eat and then died of starvation.

Shoes with Stoves in Them.

An electric heating apparatus for the feet has been patented in Germany. The inventor calls it "bestable shoes." Within the heel of the shoe a hole is hollowed out, there is a receptacle for a glowing substance, similar to that used in the Japanese hand-warmers. Between the soles, imbedded in asbestos cover, is a rubber bag, which is filled with water. This can be heated, and as it circulates while the wearer of the shoe is walking, it keeps the surface of the foot warm. A small safety valve has been added so that the bag cannot burst. The warmth given by the water is said to be about 26 degrees Fahrenheit, and will last about eight hours. The sole is slightly thicker than that of a wet-weather boot.

Cities and Morals.

This shifting of the population from the country to the towns is accompanied by a profound change in the habits, thought and mode of life of a large portion of the population. The wits are sharpened and the moral sense is blunted by the excitement and variety of city life. There is a feverish activity arising from the struggle of so many competitors, the keen competition and such close contact with each other. The crowding of the population increases with the value of real estate and the injury to health and morals increases in the same ratio.—Scribner's.

She Knew the Rules.

He had listened to her upbraiding for two hours by the downstairs clock.

"My love," he said mildly, "don't you think it is about time for you to adjourn sine die?"

"I shall adjourn sine die presently," she coldly remarked, "and then—I will not adjourn to an extra session."

The Trouble.

Mrs.—Am I still "the star of your life," as I was when you used to write me letters in days of—of—course, dear. "I don't seem to be drawing a star salary, though."—Indianapolis Journal.

MISSIONS.

Reports from various cities indicate that the charitable work of the order of the King's Daughters is reaping splendid results for the Master.

It is estimated that Union Congregational church, Chicago, has given $200,000 to foreign missions and $300,000 to home missions and other charities during the seventy-four years of its existence.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, has just completed a week of excellent work among the churches of Chicago in the interest of the Volunteer mission work which she so ably represents.

A novel series of religious services for employes of the Union Pacific railroad company was inaugurated by the Sunday Breakfast association at the depot, Fifteenth and Dunlap street, Omaha, Philadelphia. President Bean conducted the exercises and an address was made by Rev. Edward Wagner.

The Chicago Training School for Missions, located at 4949 Indiana avenue, has received the handsomest gift of deeds to property in that city valued at $8,000 to $10,000. The attention of the public is being more and more drawn to this institution, which is putting hundreds of workers into the mission fields of this and other countries. An endowment fund of $100,000 is now greatly needed.

BEACH & SON.

The Great McEwen.

McEwen, the renowned hypnotist and mind reader, is giving a week's entertainment at the opera house this week. He came here heralded by the press and public of the places he has visited as the greatest artist in his line ever seen, and his exhibitions here fully bear out the statements. At St. Cloud Germania Hall, was unable every night to accommodate the crowds that gathered to hear and on Thursday evening according to the Journal-Press, he turned away over 500 people.

The gentleman is certainly the fairest exponent of the mysterious art we have ever had here. He does not make any absurd claims that he cannot substantiate, but does everything and more than he claims. On Monday evening he devoted considerable time to explaining what hypnotism really is, and wherein it differs from what is known as mesmerism. His remarks were very interesting and instructive to all interested in the subject.

He has not failed to hypnotize and place under his control anyone who would give himself up to his influence and suggestions, and the laughable and ludicious situations and attitudes he places his subjects in nightly keeps the audience in an uproar. On Wednesday he placed one of the young men accompanying him in a cataleptic state, and he lay during the day like a corpse in the show window of Atwood's drug store, and was taken to the opera house to be awakened that evening. There will be two more performances, tonight and tomorrow night, the program each evening being entirely different. McEwen and his wonderful powers are the talk of the town.

Dangerously Ill.

The Rev. Canon Pentreath and his estimable daughter, Miss Gwendoline, are both lying dangerously ill at their home in this city, the latter being afflicted with internal abcesses, while the young lady is suffering with a malignant attack of typhoid fever. The reverend gentleman was very bad the latter part of last week, but gained noticeably the first of this week, but new abcesses forming, he is again in a very dangerous condition. Miss Pentreath's condition is even more serious. Her temperature is very high and she is unconscious, and heart complications are feared. That the Lord in his mercy may spare their lives is the prayer of their many faiends.

Contract and bond of A. J. Halsted for doing city printing were read and accepted.

Petition of barbers of the city asking to have their electric light rate reduced was granted and the clerk instructed to place the rate at 50 cents per light each, with discount as before.

A motion was made and carried that the matter of enforcing the payment of electric light rentals in advance be deferred until further action of the council, but that consumers be required to pay rentals at the city clerk's office by the 10th inst., or lights will be shut off.

The council then went into executive session, and when the doors were opened the council adjourned.

The Retired Shipmaster.

The world has a warm place in its heart for the retired sea captain. He is held in respect in every clime and his reputation is considered one of the most honorable to which man may devote his life. And this is justly so, for none is so fraught with peril and none requires a greater alertness of the mind.—New Haven Palladium.

TELLS A GRAPHIC STORY.

Custer's Operations Against the Sioux Indorsed by Major General Miles.

In Major General Miles' personal recollections of army life a chapter is devoted to General Custer and the Sioux war, the massacre and the campaign that followed. The points of interest in this history of the last great campaign against the Indians are naturally the operations leading to the death of Custer and the operations in Arizona that led to the retiring of General Crook from active command and the transfer of General Miles to that district.

General Miles writes with great feeling and unhesitatingly champions the cause of General Custer in the campaign against Sitting Bull. He states clearly the conditions that prevailed when General Custer moved with the Seventh cavalry into the Indian country, when General Terry, in command of the department, General Sheridan in command of the military district and General Sherman in command of the army, knew not enough of the conditions and circumstances to give definite instructions. General Miles admits that at the time there was a feeling in military circles that General Custer's training in the civil war and his general temper in battle were against him as the commander of an expedition against the hostile Indians, and General Grant insisted that Terry, and not Custer, be placed in command of the expedition. It was admitted, on the other hand, that General Custer had more experience in fighting Indians than General Terry, and that he would be in command of the active column.

General Miles takes the position that General Custer's dispositions for the battle were in direct accordance with the best military strategy, and that he failed to defeat the Indians simply because he was not adequately supported by the seven companies of cavalry that were to act in concert with him. He insists that General Custer did not disobey orders, because the last instructions of General Terry were to make his own dispositions and to use his own judgment. General Miles conducted the winter campaign immediately following the Custer massacre. He was familiar with the Indians who participated in that campaign. He visited the battlefield, traced the line of battle and the development of the fighting, or the progress of the battle, by the position of the dead bodies, and he scouts the idea that General Custer retreated to the ravine, a theory that was advanced by some of his critics, but shows that the bodies found in the ravine were those of the 30 or 40 men who had attempted to escape when all their comrades had been slaughtered. He criticises the actions of Major Reno, and incidentally those of Captain Benteen. He tells, in short, a graphic story of what must have been one of the most dramatic battles of history and his discussion is from first to last a defense of the dead Custer and severe condemnation of those who failed to support him.
