FOR MEN MUST WORK

A ST. LOUIS EMPLOYER WHO WON'T GIVE JOBS TO WOMEN.

Give the Men Work, and Good Wages and Let Them Take Care of the Women in His Mill—Has Other Means than the Labor Question.

There are no women in the wholesale apico and the house of Julius Schotten & Co. of St. Louis, although it has an office force of 24, a factory force of 60 and 14 traveling representatives, a total of 118 persons.

The stenographers of this house are young men. The bookkeepers are men.
The factory workers are all men and boys. Seventy-five per cent of them could be replaced by women and girls.
The stenographers could be replaced by girls without lowering the standard of work, girls and women could take the places of some of the bookkeepers and more than half of the factory workers, but they do not because Julius J. Schotten, the proprietor, says:

"This is a place for men."
The private office of Julius J. Schotten is a parlor. He reclines with his feet on a stool. He concentrates his methods of business and the fact that he does not employ women. Schotten said to The Post-Dispatch:

A young lady came to me one day and asked for work. She said she had a younger brother she had to support.
I told her need the brother she had the old, and I gave him employment at wages enough to support himself and his sister.

I do not want any one to think I am the enemy of the woman and girls who are right. I am seeking to help them. I may be wrong, but I believe I am right. There are women and girls working in St. Louis whose husbands and brothers are doing nothing. They are young men doing housework and washing dishes whose sisters provide the family income. This is wrong.

There should be work for the men and boys. The mothers and wives and sisters should be comfortably supported at home. The girl who works down town every day cannot become much of a housekeeper. Housekeeping makes housekeepers. Girls working down town are not acquiring much experience in housekeeping. The home becomes to them a place of too many restrictions.

So I never employ women or girls.
If every business man employed no one but men and paid them men's wages, St. Louis would not be full of girls and women compelled to work.
The young men would be able to make enough money to marry the girls and take care of them.

I could probably save $2,000 a year by discharging some of my men and boys and putting women and girls in their places. I would not do it. I have no right to do it, and I have no inclination to do it. I do not care to risk that way. The men I employ are paid enough to enable them to become providers for people dependent upon them. Their mothers and sisters are not compelled to work.

There is not an employee in my office force who is paid less than $75 a month. I start a capable young man at $90 a month. He is worth that to me.
My stenographer is worth to me what I pay him—$75 or $100 a month. I do not know what I could get for a man who has a family and he and he is worth of a provider $100 a month. But I would not do it. If I did, I would destroy his fund of usefulness and divert him of his power to his provider. A man cannot have a family and be much
of a provider $100 a month.

I have no criticism to make upon business men who do employ women and girls. That is their business. Men they have a family and he and he is worth of a provider $100 a month. But I would not do it. If I did, I would destroy his fund of usefulness and divert
him of his power to his provider. A man cannot have a family and be much
of a provider $100 a month.

was steady to comprehension.
A very small pile of coal lay on the sidewalk in front of a house on a street near the river. A man, a small man of Hans was standing alone and staring at a job. He was the door.

"Am get ye all's coal?" he asked the lady at the door.
"Yes."
"Want it t'ot to?"
"Yes."
"Kain't I get it job?"
"Yes, your's pretty small, and then you might charge too much. You might ask more than I could pay."
"How much is ye get?" said the small man of business. "Kin ye raise a dollar?"
"Oh, my goodness, no!"
"Sevenpence only!"
"No, run along and don't bother me."
And she started to close the door.
"Hebbe ye ye'll get 10 cents."
"No, no, run along."
"I reckon ye all ain't got er quality."
"No."
"See a dime?"
"No, not even a dime," replied the woman, beginning to laugh.
"Well, how much is ye get?" questioned Hans, showing his teeth. "I want it t'ot to."
"I've got just a nickel."
"Well, I'm 'n' lookin' for nickel jobs." And he straightway began Washington Star.

And yet He Could Write.
Among public servants who are worried by foolish questions the superintendant of mails in the postoffice gets his full share. One of his visitors on a certain occasion was a man who said to the deputy who answered the call "I am going out of town today and I don't know where he will stay in New York or where he will go from here. Can you help me?"
"Certainly we can," said the clerk.
"A mailpost goes to meet the steamer, and if you address your letter properly and put domestic postage on it it will be delivered" all right.
"But how shall I address it—where shall I send it?"
"That's all—just as I told you."
"No city? No nothing?"
"No, no—just as I told you."
The man thanked the clerk and went away, and came back a little later with an addressed letter in his hand.
"Ray," he said to the clerk, "about that letter I've addressed it and stamped it all right, but the man's name isn't John Smith. How about that?"—New York Tribune.

The Old Home Paper.
Noting the fact that many country bred men in the large cities take the local paper in their old homes, the Philadelphia Record says: "The head of a large market street wholesale business has been a regular subscriber to one of the Home county papers for 60 years. 'He wouldn't give it up for anything,' said this man's son. 'He gets more real enjoyment from it than from anything he reads. A daily edition has been started within the last ten years, but he doesn't want that.
He only gets the weekly edition, which gives him a sense of personal nature from the various towns throughout the county.' He writes over the paper his and his comments on the various items of news are often amusing. Scarcely a name is mentioned that he doesn't say "Why, I used to go to school with his father" or "I once liked his Uncle Jim for trying my clothes up when we used to go swimming in the Nonhampton."

See His Day For Nothing.
"Does you want to see de president or need?" asked the colored man who sat in a chair at the head of the stairs.
"Yes, he's the man I want to see,"
replied the caller.
"That a pass or something?"
"About buying out the road for $50, 000,000. Can you attend to the business for me?"
"I expects I could, sah; but, dis bein my second day yers an bein I ain't feelin powerful, maybe you'd better see de president himself—right down de hall on second door to de left, sah."—

The 6-year-old son of a hat dresser, who had heard his father complain occasionaly because the janitor was drunk and "in no condition to attend to his work," went to the fact about his own hat week and rang the bell.
When Mrs. Blank answered it, the young man said:
"Please, Mrs. Blank, can't your little girl come down and play with me?"
"Not today," said Mrs. Blank; "she is in no condition to play."
"What's the matter?" asked the boy anxiously. "Is she drunk?"—New York

THE FRENCH SOLDIER

SOME OF THE BRUTALITIES WHICH HE IS SUBJECTED.

Hearts and Other Punishments Which Sometimes Find in the Victim's Death Throat Struck as if Not Ordered, by the Officers.

Soldiers in the French army are not subjected by law to corporal punishment any more than it has been a part of the regulations governing the military academy at West Point that cadets should "brace" or "qualify" on molasses and prison.

The thing which distinguishes the habits of the French army from those of the American soldiers and privates is that it is suggested and almost ordered by the unscrupulous officers. An officer will say to a corporal or sergeant, "Have a man here who has done so and so," saying something more than likely to be true, and the soldier will be ordered to "brace" or "qualify" on molasses and prison.

The officer runs his hand over the man's head and neck, and the man is left to his own devices, while the officer looks on and smokes his pipe.

In some of the French barracks a favorite method of punishment is to hang the offending soldier up by his neck from a beam of wood, and let him hang there until he is dead.

At one time the "vile" was much favored as a method of punishment by the officers, and the soldiers were ordered to "brace" or "qualify" on molasses and prison.

Several years ago Prince Plussell of Aragon, a young noble, ran away from his home and went to Algeria to join the foreign legion, the wife for ever with a man.

Another form of punishment which used to be popular in Algeria was that of "crecain." A piece of wood, usually the trunk of a tree, was used. The man was laid on it, usually bound so that the middle of his back would be resting on the wood, with his head and feet hanging down to an iron bar and his hands to another, and his feet were held up by a rope.

A form of punishment still popular among the French colonial troops—that is, popular with those who inflict it and not with those who suffer it—is the "crecain." It consists of throwing the man face downward and tying his wrists and ankles behind his back so that his wrists and ankles are brought together—New York Press.

IMPRISONED BY ICE.

Steamers of the Pure Marquette Railway Unable to Reach Shore.

London, March 7.—The heavy snow and ice which has been covering the coast for the past three days, the six powerful winter steamers of the Pure Marquette Railway company have been churning the ice and working without avail for many hours. High westerly winds have prevailed since Sunday and the entire east shore of Lake Michigan is heaved as far as the eye can reach. In places the ice barrier is piled up 20 feet high. In the channel where there is generally 20 feet of water the snow ice penetrates to the bottom. The imprisoned fleet inside the Iron Terres Marquette and Ludington and the steamer No. 2 and 4. All are dashed over with a dense coating of ice. Passengers from the boating boats walked ashore on the rough ice after descending from the boats by the means of ladders. The blockade is the first of the winter. It places an embargo on freight traffic.

Sore Over the Failure of Congress to Pass Favorable Legislation.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The fifty-third Congress to legislate in favor of war veterans and together with critics of an attempt to legislate the war veterans to what they consider an inferior place in the line of the national park and a recognition of their place to be held at Cleveland in September next to consider veterans' rights were the subject of an address delivered in Brooklyn by Joseph W. Ray, president of the War Veterans and Sons' association and chairman of the G. A. R. committee on legislation.

THE OLD STORY.

Death Follows Investigation of Unexplained Charge of Dynamite.

Birmingham, Ala., March 7.—News has reached here of the accidental killing of three men near Beverly, Tennessee, Wayne county. Va. Gus Hager, Grant Fearman and Bud Park were blasting rock on the Norfolk and Western extension and had fired a blast, but no report followed. They began picking the charge out when it exploded. One was killed instantly, the other two dying in a few hours.

BRITISH BURN TWO TOWNS.

London, March 7.—Intelligence has just reached here from Northern Nigeria bringing news from there up to Jan. 31, describing the operations of a British expedition of 500 against the marauding hordes of Bida and Kankara. Both capital towns were burned by the British. Two hundred slave women belonging to the king of Bida were released by 16 men and the command of two others, who were severely engaged 1500 armed natives.

REWARD FOR THE LYONSERS.

Chicago, March 7.—Chicago's police officers and contractors have signed the documents which guarantee bonds for two years to come. In signing the documents they fixed their names to a statement to the effect that their various unions had withdrawn from the building trades council and would not affiliate with any central body of that name.

GABINET SWORN IN.

Oath of Allegiance Administered by Chief Justice Fuller.

Washington, March 7.—The members of the cabinet were sworn in during the day in the cabinet room at the White House. The ceremony was entirely informal, no one being present except the president, Chief Justice Fuller, who administered the oath, and Secretary Cortelyou. The members stood around the cabinet table and with uplifted hands repeated after the chief justice the oath of allegiance. After extending to each one and to the president mutual congratulations, Chief Justice Fuller withdrew. For about half an hour afterwards the members of the cabinet remained with the president discussing appointments. The appointments of the war claims commission and the St. Louis exposition commissioners will be made shortly. In addition some other important appointments are pending.

A Happy New Year.

It is a story for all who have determined to give up the bulk of their cold orders for 1910. Speed the partying guest, old 1909, welcome the incoming visitor, young 1910, by giving a housewarming party for the occasion. In other words, have good food on your fires and in your cellars. Good food here every time. A. J. Ferris.
