Circumstantial Evidence,

A wealthy young lady suddenly and mysteriously lost a valuable ring; she shed just returned from a walk, one day, and while bathing her hands, left her rings on her dressing table. The dinner bell sounded almost before she was ready, and hattily finishing her toilet, she ran down to join the circle in the drawing-room. Proceeding to the dining room, she found that she had neglected to put on her rings, and calling one of the servants she sent him for them. They were all brought but one—a very valuable sapphire. That had, disappeared; searches for it were fruitless.

Matters began to look serious. The young lady's mother appeared on the scene, and looked and spoke very gravely upon the subject. The lady's maids character was unimpsechable; she had been more than ten years in the family, and was a thoroughly trusted servant. Bealdes her but one other person had entered the room—a young girl recently employed as under housemaid. Suspicion pointed disagreeably toward her as the colly started when the family and was a thoroughly trusted servant. MAD. GEO. W. ANDERSON, representing the Anti-Monopolist, gave the Transum of fice a calliforday. He reports great damage ilone in and about St. Paul by the wind and rain storm that has just passed over us. One of the largest buildings on west Third Street was unroofed, and the building and contents nearly destroyed. Another building near Minne-Ha-Ha Falls was taken up bodily by the cyclone, carried some distance and dashed to pieces, killing three ladies and badly injuring several geatlemen occupants of the building.

Among the many excellent institutions that attracted our attention in Brainerd was a "Free Reading Room" for the railroad employees, we presume. Now, we have no railroad men, but we have many strangers and a few citzens whose leisure time could and sould be most pleasantly passed in reading the news of the day from local and St. Paul papers, and general literature from the books that would probably be contributed by our people to a reading room, if such was established. We will furnish the people from our aschange list. If it can't be established here, it can at the lumber mills. Who will speak!—[Perham Independent.]

when he returned home:

Business calling us down the line we, in company with a friend, Mr. J. B. Kemper, of this place, took the moon train for Brainerd on Wednesday of last week, and, after a pleasant ride of a few hours stepped off on the broad platform that extends from the Headquarters hotel to the main track in the "City of the Pines." As we stepped off we were welcomed to Brainerd by W. Hastley, the able editor of the Rainerd Tribune, and Mr. White, the agent of the L. S. & P. S. Co., and we were further made welcome to Headquarters hotel by the courteous greeting of Mr. F. W. HEADQUARTERS.

On Thursday morning, guided by Mr. Hartley, we went over to the office building known as Headquarters. its outward appearance is very attrac-tive to the eye, the style of architec-ture being a mixture of the Gothic and Oriental. Over the main entrance a square and symmetrically propor-tioned tower surmounted by a battle-ment affords relief to the front of the ficient attractions to induce "Al." to leave the "City of the Pines." It is well.

Yesterday's thunder and rain storm made considerable have with the railroad track between Brainerd and Moorhead, insomuch that last evening's train did not leave here for the west until noon to-day.

The west of the Pines. It is building, and owing to its numerous oriel windows is in itself an object of beauty. Internally the building agrees with its fine exterior, and, while there is a total absence of ostentious display, every office is neat, comfortable, and well ventilated. We proceeded to the superintendent Mr. Towne soffice, and there we found this contleans and and there we found this gentleman and the master mechanic Mr. Lewis, to both whom we were introduced by Mr. Hartley. We found Mr. Towne a courteous officer, ready to impart any information in his possession, and if we were to judge of his familiarity with the minutiae of the business over which he has control by his direct replies to our several questions, there is not a single transaction that takes place in the routine of business that he is not cognizant of After a very pleasant interview with Mr. Towne we started to visit
